Discrimination By Sex Possible In Annuity Plans

By NANCY HICKS and CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writers

More than one person said it: "You know how to solve that problem — you gals are just going to have to start dying sooner."

But the problem — possible sex discrimination in retirement plans affecting at least 5,000 Lancaster County residents — has more to do with living.

Mandatory retirement plans established for employes of the city of Lincoln, Lancaster County, the state and the University of Nebraska, violate Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, according to Robert Curtis, general legal counsel for the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) in Kansas City.

Annuity Concept Is The Rule

Although the plans differ in detail, they have one thing in common — the annuity concept. This means that all things being equal, a woman will receive a smaller monthly retirement payment than a man.

This disparity, based on sex, amounts to sex discrimination, Curtis believes, although he said a final determination would have to be left to the courts.

A case testing the legality of employer-sponsored annuity plans is pending in New York. A New York professor is suing Teachers Insurance Annuity Association (TIAA) on the grounds that the use of actuarial tables in retirement programs is discriminatory. TIAA underwrites retirement plans for more than 60% of U.S. colleges and universities, including NU.

A retirement annuity plan works as follows:

Two Lancaster County employes each have $20,000, including interest, in their retirement funds. Both are 65, retire at the same time and select the same lifetime annuity option.

The only difference between the two is sex, and that means a difference in monthly benefits.

The man will receive a monthly income of $147.62; the woman, $125.31.

Women Outlive Men

The difference in the monthly payment is based on evidence — scientifically tested and compiled in actuarial tables — that women, as a group, live three years longer than men as a group.

At 65 years of age, women in general are expected to live about four years longer than men.

Thus, under the monthly annuity retirement plan, women as a group, although their monthly payments are less, will eventually get the same amount of money as men as a group. Their payments will simply be spread out over a longer period.

However, some charge that such a plan is discriminatory because it treats people as a group rather than as individuals.

This procedure's "unacceptability as a matter of law is plain," says William W. Van Alstyne, president of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) in a Sept. 30 letter to the Secretary of Labor John Dunlap.

Assignment Of Traits Illegal

Individuals cannot be assigned a characteristic which may be statistically true for their race or sex under the Civil Rights legislation, Van Alstyne points out.

While it is statistically accurate that women live longer than men, this longevity is not true for every individual woman.

A recent EEOC decision follows this same line of reasoning, explaining that Title VII is not concerned with whether benefits to each sex group are equal, but rather whether benefits to individual men and women are equal.

Defenders of the annuity system point out that, should payments to individual men and women be equalized, women collectively would receive more money than men because, as a group, they live longer than men. Thus the discrimination would be reversed, they say.

However, again, this argument is based on groups of people, not individuals, opponents of the annuity system say.

The availability of cash options — whereby the retiree can receive his/her retirement money in one lump sum instead of in actuarially-determined monthly payments — cannot be used as an "out" by employers whose basic retirement package is an annuity plan, Curtis said.

Such options — which are offered by the state and local governments — do not negate the fact that the annuity plan is discriminatory, he explained.

Locally, only county and university officials were aware that the retirement plans for employes might be discriminatory.

County Reviewing Plan

The county is reviewing its employe retirement package, which affects about 400 employes.

"If it is illegal, we will change it without being forced to," said Wayne Hart, county personnel director.

Lancaster Board Chairperson Jan Gauger hopes employes will look at this part of the plan and give their opinions. But personally she feels "that the risks should be average between the two populations.

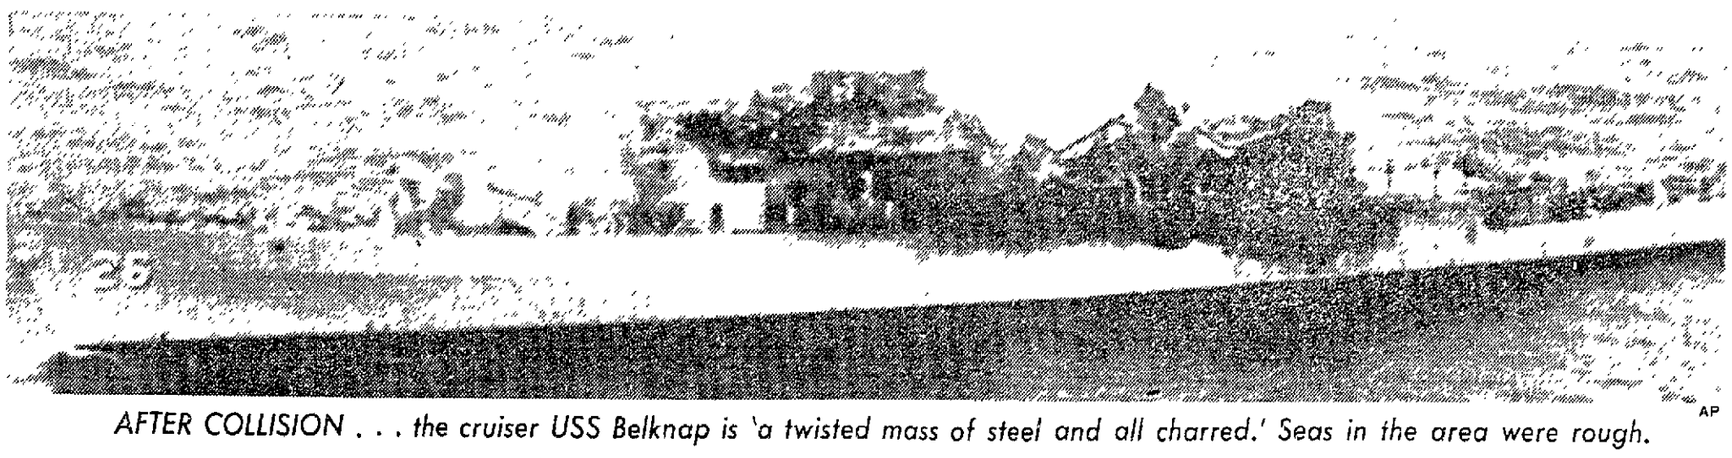

"I think the benefits ought to be the same for everybody. They should vary in amount only for the number of years of service and the total amount in the individual account."

Mayor Helen Boosalis was less outspoken about the city plan, which affects 600 employes. "If there are inequities, these are probably areas to be explored."

Most of the employes who are paying into the various annuity retirement plans are unaware of the difference in payments to men and women.

"You mean women get less a month than men in our plan? I didn't know that," said Wright Robinson, deputy director, the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission.

Collision Kills Four Sailors

GAETA, Italy (AP) — A nighttime collision between the U.S. aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy and the missile cruiser Belknap in the windswept Mediterranean east of Sicily killed at least four crewmen and injured 16, the U.S. Navy said Sunday.

About 55 men from the Belknap were swept overboard but rescued from the rough, oil-blackened waters. Four others were reported missing in the Saturday night mishap.

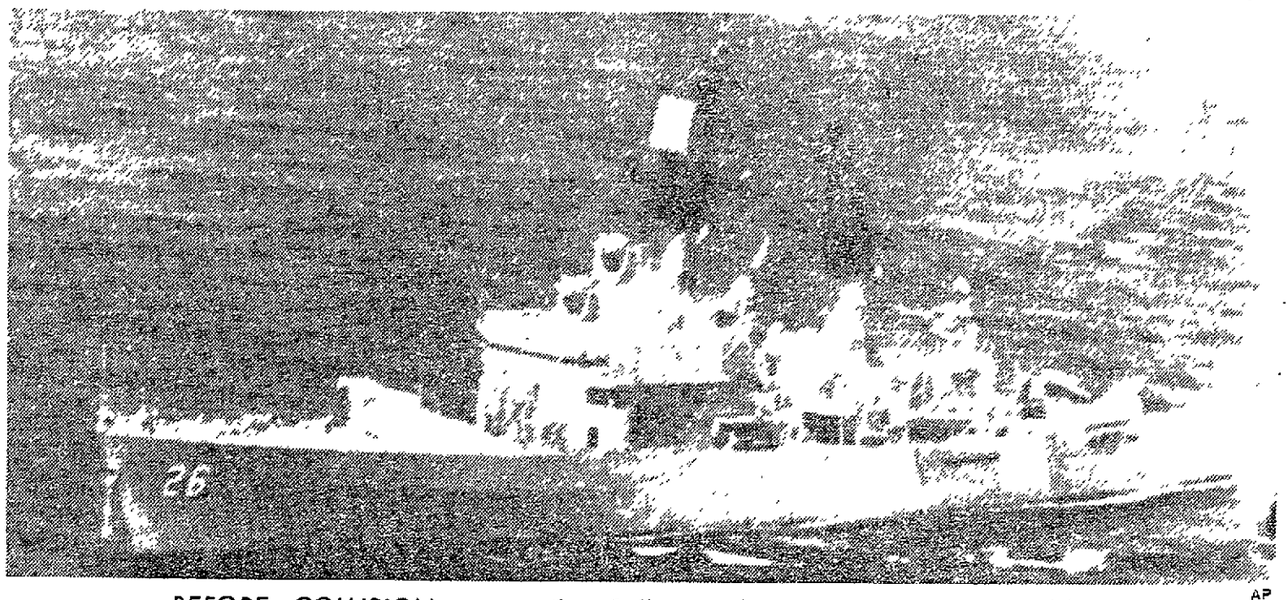

Newsmen who flew over both warships said the Belknap's superstructure was "a twisted mass of steel and all charred" and that the carrier was caught in a rainstorm that hampered search and rescue operations.

One of the injured, David Vollmer of Waupaca, Wis. who was airlifted to the U.S. Navy air facility in Sigonella, Sicily, told a newsman: "We were trapped below decks, but fought our way to the deck. Ammunition exploded. There were terrible fires."

The U.S. Navy 6th Fleet Headquarters in Gaeta said three of the dead were from the Belknap and one was from the Kennedy. Five of the 16 injured were reported in serious condition. The five first were airlifted to Sigonella and later flown to a Navy hospital near Naples.

Adm. David Bagley, commander in chief of U.S. naval forces in Europe, called the collision and the blaze a "tragedy" and praised his sailors for their "tenacity" in battling it.

The Navy said "flashback fires occurred in the Belknap and were quickly put out," referring to blazes that were first put out only to erupt again.

BEFORE COLLISION . . . the Belknap shows superstructure amidship. AP

Identities of the dead and missing were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The Navy said it took only 10 minutes to douse the flames on the Kennedy's massive flight deck, but the fire raged for 2½ hours on the Belknap before being brought under control. The cruiser sustained heavy damage. It was taken under tow by the destroyer Bordelon, bound for August Bay, Sicily. The Navy said the Kennedy would remain in the area for further search efforts, then return to normal operations.

The announcement of the casualties came after U.S. Navy ships and aircraft mounted a search of the oil-blackened collision area.

The Navy gave no explanation for the crash, but Adm. Bagley, ordered an investigation. Citing Defense Department policy, the Navy also refused to confirm or deny whether either ship was carrying nuclear weapons.

The collision occurred during night flight operations Saturday in what the Navy described as "reduced visibility," indicating at least a partial blackout during maneuvers by the seven-vessel task force.

Teaching Ways To Think Is Core Issue

As "Man: A Course of Study" undergoes increasing scrutiny, Lincoln parents and citizens intensely support or attack MACOS, some reasonably and some with emotion.

They do not offer lightly or minimize their concerns, some expressed to The Lincoln Star.

Their objections question the public schools' role in providing moral education and teaching values. Underlying MACOS, concerns about how to teach children ways to think illustrate what many view as a home-school conflict.

No Formal Complaint Filed

In the seven years MACOS has been offered in Lincoln schools, not one formal complaint has been filed about it. Yet callers to The Star and other parents say they were unaware MACOS was and is being taught.

Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction, said the course "invites children to inquire what it is that makes human beings human."

The 5th-grade social studies course "does this by having them compare their own culture with the way certain forms of animals live, and with the way a very different group of people live, mainly the Netsilik Eskimos."

Salmon Eggs Cited

For example, in learning how adults care for their young, Brandt said MACOS students learn that few of the thousands of eggs salmon lay survive because they aren't cared for. But other animals, such as birds, feed and care for their young.

Then "whenever the children are looking at any part of life (such as the Netsilik's), they're continually asking how this compares with themselves."

The goal is for students to recognize that "they're being raised by parents who give a great deal of effort and many years caring for them, protecting them and helping them to grow up and be responsible adults," he said.

Tribe Illustrative Only

To objections about examining the Netsilik, Brandt said MACOS students "could have studied any culture." Course developers chose that Eskimo tribe, also human beings, to illustrate how a small, isolated group of people could survive.

Citing food-gathering, clothes-making and teaching children, Brandt said MACOS compares "the way adults have learned to solve certain problems, with the way we solve those same problems in our society."

Teaching that kind of independent thinking is a "difficult problem, and I'm very concerned about that," Brandt said. "Every school system has to assume" that thinking seriously about evidence, raising questions and drawing conclusions is "inseparable from what you mean by a good education.

"If there are people who feel that what they want is kind of a rote education," accepting one viewpoint without question, then "that is contrary to what we are trying to do," Brandt said.

Although it's "very awkward we should be at odds with parents over a question like that," he said "I don't want to dismiss that. I don't want to make light of it."

Brandt said his philosophy is that "the questioning and thinking process is simply part of a modern education."

One individual who visited The Star about MACOS said the course has appeal because of the color films and loose structure which students consider playtime.

"I don't see that kind of organization existing here" at Holmes School, said Principal Ruth Eickman. "I do see (MACOS) being interdisciplinary, involving all areas of the curriculum.

"We have all kinds of reading, writing, research, science" in a "very scholarly approach" to social studies, including history and geography, she said.

Other parents have objected that MACOS course offereings vary within a school. Miss Eickman said MACOS teacher-training emphasizes only basic techniques, which aren't intended to result in uniform content presentation.

Thus, MACOS proceeds according to each teacher's strengths and style, taking into account each student group's needs and wishes, she said.

"There's a high degree of interest" in MACOS among the children, she said, "because it puts them in the process of hearing and seeing and investigating, and much of their understanding (of MACOS content) is based on the background that's hopefully been presented at home.

"So it's not saying, 'You shall believe only one way,' " but relies first on parental direction, she said. Critics could similarly "doubt the validity of math in many processes."

But "we say to them, 'There's more than one way to believe.' "

Cease-Fire Off Again

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon's infant cease-fire collapsed in bloodshed Sunday, leaving at least 29 persons dead and 85 wounded in Beirut alone.

Fighting also was reported in the northern city of Tripoli and the Bekaa Valley town of Baalbek, but there was no immediate word on casualties. A police radio call from Baalbek, 40 miles northeast of Beirut, said 500 Moslem militiamen were attacking the town hall.

Premier Rashid Karami announced the truce Saturday night — the 13th in eight months of civil war. But one discouraged policeman said: "The cease-fire never even got off the ground, not for a minute. Each armed group is acting on its own and security forces are unable to exercise any control anywhere."

Christian and Moslem neighborhoods traded fire with mortars, rockets and heavy machine guns, sometimes intensifying their barrages to cover raiding parties sent to kidnap hostages. Fires started by rocket-propelled grenades burned out of control in the central business district and the eastern and northern suburbs.

Only one seaside residential area and the fashionable Hamra shopping district remained untouched by the conflict, and even there most residents were too scared to venture outdoors.

Only 20 persons showed up for Sunday worship in an Armenian church near the downtown hotel district. The priest never made it because of sniper fire, and a layman conducted the service.

Lebanon's outgunned and outnumbered security forces have given up all pretense of trying to intervene between the warring street gangs.

N.Y. Lawmen In Valley?

VALLEY (AP) — Six laid-off New York City police officers are looking westward, job-hunting in this town of 1,800 with a police department of one chief and two patrolmen.

"All of them were broad-minded enough" to realize that "we have cars instead of horses here," Police Chief Richard Blitz said of the six New York officers who were among applicants answering newspaper ads placed in several states.

"I guess they're looking for something more than an unemployment check."

The Valley Police Department, with a chief and two officers, "raised its salaries and increased its benefits. Now we want something for our money," Blitz said.

"These (New York) policemen are very well trained. Some who've come here have been cited for meritorious police work. They were just at that level where everybody was wiped out, laid off."

While Nebraska requires its officers to attend a police academy for seven weeks, New York City police must undergo six months of training, Blitz said.

Blitz said he didn't know yet if New Yorkers would be hired to fill the two openings.

Although "they all remarked at how pleasant and outgoing the people are here, and some said they have never seen the air so clean," Blitz said most of the Easterners "feel they couldn't make a transition from the many people in New York to the few people in the Midwest."

Others were waiting to see if they're offered a higher-paying job elsewhere.

Blitz said he ran the newspaper ads when he learned that both Valley's officers would be leaving.

We can't get policemen locally. Many want to work for a larger department, where the burden of responsibility is divided among more officers.

He declined to reveal the names of the six New Yorkers, saying several of them told him "they didn't want to be interviewed (by the news media.) All they wanted was a job."

Spain's Leader Franco Buried

VALLEY OF THE FALLEN, Spain (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco was buried Sunday in a vast underground basilica cut into the side of a granite mountain as legions of civil war veterans and young rightists gave the Fascist salute and thundered, "Long Live Franco!"

Wearing the blue shirts of the Falange, the 82-year-old general's ladder to power almost four decades ago, more than 100,000 rightists massed at this monument to those who died in the 1936-39 civil war as the flag-draped coffin arrived from Madrid.

They packed a huge plaza in the shadow of the mountain, gave the straight-arm Fascist salute and sang the Falange anthem "Face to the Sun" as King Juan Carlos I, Franco's chosen heir, followed the coffin into the basilica.

A single cry of "Long Live the King!" was heard amid the shouts of "Long Live Franco!" But no voice was raised against the 37-year-old Juan Carlos, whose installation Saturday returned Spain to a monarchy after 44 years. He is expected to try to guide the nation away from the authoritarian style of Franco, who died Thursday.

Franco's wife of 52 years, Dona Carmen Polo de Franco, did not see him buried. The 75-year-old widow, accompanied by Juan Carlos' wife Sofia, withdrew to her Pardo Palace after a morning mass outside the national palace in Madrid.

In the basilica hung with black and red Falangist flags, Abbot Jesus Maria de Lojendio recited a prayer and blessed Franco's coffin, draped in the Spanish flag.

Juan Carlos stood near Franco's daughter, Mrs. Carmen Martinez-Bordiu, and several of Franco's grandchildren.

Before the coffin was lowered into a deep grave behind the main altar of the basilica, Franco's justice minister, Jose Maria Sanchez Ventura asked the general's two palace heads: "Do you swear that the body in this coffin is that of Francisco Franco Bahamonde?"

Each replied: "Yes, it is. I swear it." Both were weeping.

After the ceremony, attended by Spanish and foreign dignitaries and beamed to 16 nations by Spanish television, a granite slab was fastened over the grave with the simple inscription: "Francisco Franco."

Inside the basilica the national anthem was played. Outside, a loudspeaker boomed: "Caudillo (leader) of Spain, present. Caudillo of Spain, present. Upward Spain."

Funeral celebrations for Spain's ruler of 36 years began Sunday morning after Franco's coffin was sealed at the end of 50 hours' lying-in-state at the national palace. Officials said 400,000 persons had filed past the coffin and another 300,000 were waiting as the palace gates closed.

In the early dawn cold, hundreds of Spaniards gathered in the Plaza de Oriente in front of the national palace, wrapped in heavy blankets.

The coffin was placed on a raised platform at the palace entrance, under a huge banner bearing his coat of arms. Juan Carlos and Sofia sat under a red canopy to the right of the coffin and the altar. Dona Carmen sat to the left, alone.

Honor guards of army, navy and air force lined the avenue between the palace and the crowds, flanked by rows of blue-suited police and paramilitary civil guards in white riot helmets.

Queen Sofia kissed Franco's widow as she arrived for the mass, and the former first lady wept on her shoulder. Throughout the service, she kept her head bowed under a black veil, one hand at her throat.

As the mass ended, celebrated by the primate of Spain, Marcelo Cardinal Gonzalez Martin, many of the estimated 30,000 people in the square gave the fascist salute and sang "Face to the Sun." They fluttered white handkerchiefs and shouted: "Long live Franco."

Franco's coffin was loaded on to an open artillery carriage, and the armed forces paraded past to lead the funeral cortege three miles across the capital to the Puerta de Hierro, scene of one of the bloodiest battles of the civil war.

Juan Carlos followed the coffin standing in an open jeep, surrounded by the white-caped lancers of Franco's palace guard.

Hundreds of thousands of Spaniards lined the processional route, clinging to trees, lamp posts and monuments. Police helicopters circled overhead and jet planes flew by in formation.

Washington — James R. Schlesinger said in a television interview that before his dismissal as defense secretary, the White House was proposing a defense budget for next year that would have required a 200,000-man reduction in the size of the armed forces. He made clear that he believed his objections to attempts to restrict the growth of the defense budget were the "chief substantive issue" that led to his dismissal by President Ford.

New Haven, Teachers Agree

New Haven — With the prospect of a general strike Monday, the New Haven School Board and the New Haven Federation of Teachers, which has been on strike since Nov. 10, reached a tentative contract agreement that would give the teachers nearly $2 million in pay raises and benefits over two years and put a limit on class sizes. Local union officials had threatened to turn the teachers' strike into a general strike Tuesday if 90 teachers and union officials who defied a back-to-work order were not released from jail by then.

Carey Message Expected

New York — Gov. Hugh L. Carey is expected to send a special message to the New York State Legislature Monday as it makes a third attempt to pass the $200 million New York City tax package. The message — directed primarily at the Black and Puerto Rican Caucus and at assembly Republicans — reportedly will remind the legislators that the specter of default requires them to put aside the local concerns that stalled action on the tax bill on Friday.

Assumption 'Reasonable'

Washington — The former executive director of the Rockefeller Commission that investigated the Central Intelligence Agency said Sunday that it was "reasonable to assume" that Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy knew of the agency's assassination plots against Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba.

Impact Of Oil Price Hikes Said Not Much In Long Run

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the increase in world oil prices dealt the United States and other industrialized nations a severe blow in 1974 and 1975, the long-run impact will be small, a new study published by the Brookings Institution said Sunday.

"In the long run, paying today's high oil prices need not prevent these countries from resuming a healthy rate of economic expansion and should have only a modest effect on the growth of living standards," said the study from Brookings, a private research organization.

But it also contends that one-half of the deep recession that started last year resulted from the four-fold increase in world oil prices, and the failure of economic planners in the industrial world to properly cushion the impact on their economies.

One of the editors of the study, Charles L. Schultze of Brookings, said the United States and other nations overreacted to the threat of inflation and failed to foresee the potential for recession.

"All over the world, we completely sacrificed employment to keep inflation down," he told a news conference. Had authorities known how bad the recession would be, he said, they probably would have accepted higher rates of inflation and done more to stimulate employment.

A second editor, Edward R. Fried of Brookings, said: "There is reason to think there will be a gradual erosion of price" for oil, brought about by reduced demand for oil in the industrial world and increased supplies of energy in nations outside the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The 10% increase in oil prices announced by OPEC earlier this year did not fully offset inflation to that point, he said.

The study is published as a book by Brookings entitled "Higher Oil Prices and the World Economy." Economists from the United States, Western Europe and Japan contributed to the work.

A major conclusion of the study is that the large recessionary and inflationary consequences of the 1973 oil price increase have passed their peak and should diminish steadily over the next several years.

By 1980, it said, the cost of foreign oil will be nearly fully offset for the U.S. economy through increased job-creating export activity and by investment in domestic energy sources.

But the American standard of living will be somewhat less than it otherwise might have been had oil prices remained at their pre-1973 price of about $2.75 a barrel, it said. Instead of growing 19 to 20% between 1973 and 1980, Schultze said, living standards may grow only 16 to 17%.

There also will be a shift of wealth within the United States from consumers to domestic energy producers, but Schultze said the proper way to deal with this is through higher taxes.

Spain's Leader Franco Buried

VALLEY OF THE FALLEN, Spain (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco was buried Sunday in a vast underground basilica cut into the side of a granite mountain as legions of civil war veterans and young rightists gave the Fascist salute and thundered, "Long Live Franco!"

Wearing the blue shirts of the Falange, the 82-year-old general's ladder to power almost four decades ago, more than 100,000 rightists massed at this monument to those who died in the 1936-39 civil war as the flag-draped coffin arrived from Madrid.

They packed a huge plaza in the shadow of the mountain, gave the straight-arm Fascist salute and sang the Falange anthem "Face to the Sun" as King Juan Carlos I, Franco's chosen heir, followed the coffin into the basilica.

A single cry of "Long Live the King!" was heard amid the shouts of "Long Live Franco!" But no voice was raised against the 37-year-old Juan Carlos, whose installation Saturday returned Spain to a monarchy after 44 years. He is expected to try to guide the nation away from the authoritarian style of Franco, who died Thursday.

Franco's wife of 52 years, Dona Carmen Polo de Franco, did not see him buried. The 75-year-old widow, accompanied by Juan Carlos' wife Sofia, withdrew to her Pardo Palace after a morning mass outside the national palace in Madrid.

In the basilica hung with black and red Falangist flags, Abbot Jesus Maria de Lojendio recited a prayer and blessed Franco's coffin, draped in the Spanish flag.

Juan Carlos stood near Franco's daughter, Mrs. Carmen Martinez-Bordiu, and several of Franco's grandchildren.

AP

PORTRAIT OF MOM . . . Jacqueline Onassis on exhibit.

NEW YORK (AP) — Caroline Kennedy has made her debut as a photographer with an exhibition of 80 black-and-white pictures at the Lexington Labs Gallery.

There are a few pictures of Caroline's family in the exhibit. But most of them are studies of outdoor scenes, a Spanish bullfight and the mountain people of Appalachia where Caroline worked for a month in 1974 with a film crew making a documentary.

She became interested in photography in 1971 when her mother, Jacqueline Onassis, invited photographer Peter Beard to join her family on the yacht Christina for a cruise. Beard lent Caroline a camera, gave here a little advice and she snapped away all summer.

The exhibition opened Thursday with no fanfare and no publicity.

"She wanted to keep the whole thing low key," said Philip Passoni, president of the gallery.

The 17-year-old daughter of former President John F. Kennedy is currently in London taking art courses at Sotheby's, the auction house.

McGovern Tells Demos To Hold Firm On Busing

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern told Democrats on Sunday to hold firm on the busing issue and said he is waiting in the wings for another presidential bid if other candidates waver.

"I do not want a great political party which nearly lost its soul in Vietnam to sell its soul on the issue of busing," the South Dakota Democrat told a cheering audience at a party issues conference. His speech came on the heels of an antibusing demonstration outside the convention hall Saturday.

Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, an announced candidate for the party's presidential nomination, issued a statement before McGovern's speech, saying he is "opposed to forced busing."

"It is a misguided social experiment and we ought to stop it," Jackson said.

McGovern said the Democratic party should not nominate anyone for President "who even before he takes it has perjured the oath . . . to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution."

"All of us should warn any candidate who turns to the tactics of racial division and fear that, in conscience, we cannot support him even if he is the nominee," McGovern, the party's 1972 nominee, added.

Later at a news conference, McGovern said he expects most candidates to address the issue of school integration, including busing, formally but he acknowledged positioning himself to enter the race if they don't.

"If the other candidates do not address the whole range of major issues I'm concerned about and if no other candidate emerges as a leading contender," he said, "I might consider at some later point, getting in."

McGovern conceded that the impact of busing is being felt disproportionately by residents of cities, while those in the suburbs largely escape it.

"What substitute will integrate the schools, and how, and when, and at what cost?" the party's 1972 Presidential nominee asked.

"Busing is one way to pay the bill for the ancient regime of racism," McGovern said. "There may be other ways, but none of them will be painless or priceless."

"The final and consoling truth of busing is that on this issue fewer of the people will be fooled another time," McGovern said. "More of them now understand that any candidate who says or implies that by supporting him the voters can stop the buses will prove as President to be either a liar or a violator of the Constituion."

Earlier, Jackson told his party colleagues: "The upcoming presidential campaign will not be decided by how much money a candidate has — nor by the effectiveness of his political organization."

"It will be decided by his stand on the issues — as it should be," said Jackson, one of the 10 contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination.

But while Jackson was saying — on the issue of national security — that the United States should have a defense second to none, Sargent Shriver, a rival for the presidential nomination, was saying it should be "at a price we can afford."

Despite the obvious points of disagreement among the seven presidential candidates here and the 2,000 or so delegates, the striking feature of this meeting was that they were talking about political issues and not the internal divisions which have shaken the party in recent years.

"The problems of America's cities are America's toughest problems," Jackson said. "Chief among those problems is crime."

But, Jackson said, many get started down the road to crime "out of sheer economic despair. "The first order of business for the next administration must be to turn the nation's economy around — to bring unemployment down and to stop inflation dead in its tracks."

Shriver, the former Peace Corps chief, criticized American diplomacy and the covert operations of the Central Intelliegence Agency in other countries.

"We are acting more like international Tories . . . than the descendants of the men who fired the shot heard 'round the world," Shriver said.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter also criticized American foreign policy and said most of the problems and embarassment have resulted from government "misleading or even intentionally lying to the American people.

No votes were taken or decisions reached at the three-day meeting but some central trends apparently acceptable to most of the people here did emerge.

The chief point of agreement was that the economy is the place to attack Republicans in 1976 — particularly the creation of jobs and rejection of recession as the answer to inflation.

Billy Graham Sick, May Halt Foreign Tours

ATHENS (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham was suffering Sunday from severe intestinal infection threatening to cancel upcoming Middle East and African tours, his spokesman said.

He said Graham had fever, stomach cramps, dysentery and extreme exhaustion after a two months of preaching in Asia.
preaching in Asia.

"Whether Dr. Graham will be able to continue his itinerary will be decided by doctors in Athens in the next two days," the spokesman said.

The evangelist, who arrived in Athens on Sunday, is scheduled to see Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin next week in Jerusalem before moving on to East Africa to attend the general assembly of the World Council of Churches.

Demos Profiting From Watergate

Fairfax, Va. (UPI) — Fairfax County Democrats are selling pieces of the carpet trod by Watergate burglars in the historic break-in at the Democratic National Headquarters.

The one and one-half inch square pieces of carpet, adorned with a plastic ladybug, are mounted on five-by-seven wooden plaques. An attached affidavit assures that the scrap is a genuine portion of the carpet that was in the Democratic offices during the burglary June 17, 1972.

The plaques sell for $7.50. Proceeds go to the party.

Despite the obvious points of disagreement among the seven presidential candidates here and the 2,000 or so delegates, the striking feature of this meeting was that they were talking about political issues and not the internal divisions which have shaken the party in recent years.

"The problems of America's cities are America's toughest problems," Jackson said. "Chief among those problems is crime."

But, Jackson said, many get started down the road to crime "out of sheer economic despair. "The first order of business for the next administration must be to turn the nation's economy around — to bring unemployment down and to stop inflation dead in its tracks."

Shriver, the former Peace Corps chief, criticized American diplomacy and the covert operations of the Central Intelliegence Agency in other countries.

"We are acting more like international Tories . . . than the descendants of the men who fired the shot heard 'round the world," Shriver said.

Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter also criticized American foreign policy and said most of the problems and embarassment have resulted from government "misleading or even intentionally lying to the American people.

No votes were taken or decisions reached at the three-day meeting but some central trends apparently acceptable to most of the people here did emerge.

The chief point of agreement was that the economy is the place to attack Republicans in 1976 — particularly the creation of jobs and rejection of recession as the answer to inflation.

Focus On Teenage Drinking

Nationwide, the percentage of early teens who are problem drinkers is on the upswing. The renewed emphasis on booze by youth is becoming — pardon the pun — a staggering problem, made worse than ever by the fact that there are not only more youthful drunks, they are embracing the bottle at an earlier age.

The Lincoln area has not escaped the problem.

The Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs (LCAD), which has been keeping count of arrest reports for some 18 months, notes that the percentage of minors arrested for driving while intoxicated has almost doubled this year over last during the same seven month test period. The number of young teens aged 13-15 arrested for public intoxication increased substantially this year over last for the same period, while the number of common drunk arrests of older minors 16-18 decreased. Still, minors made up a higher percentage of the public intoxication arrests than they did last year.

LCAD plans to look into teenage problem drinking in Lincoln with a special focus on existing and potential treatment facilities and programs for minors. One person working in the alcoholism treatment field in Lincoln asserts that there has been "no real (community) emphasis in looking for" treatment programs especially designed for teenagers.

As the Lincoln community seeks to pull together its varying and sometimes overlapping alcohol and drug abuse treatment programs; as the community adds to its treatment arsenal such weapons as the detoxification center, special attention needs to be given to the youthful problem drinker. Although some experts may not agree, it would seem that problem drinkers in their early teens — and even pre-teen drinkers — would need a different type of approach to trying to solve their problem than is used on adult or chronic alcoholics. The savings in human terms by making headway in this area would be infinitely greater, too.

The Prison Glut

Another disturbing national trend has to do with overflowing prisons. In Georgia, where there are over ten times the number of prison inmates as in Nebraska, authorities are releasing prisoners by the hundreds. Well over one thousand have been released before their time was up in recent months just to make room. Elsewhere across the nation similar conditions exist, although probably not to the degree in many areas as they exist in Georgia.

In Nebraska, the problem is of much smaller dimensions, but there is still a problem.

The Exon administration will ask the Legislature next session for a deficit appropriation to help the Department of Corrections handle an unexpected increase in the total prison population.

The number of adult males in the Nebraska Penal Complex has exceeded the number budgeted for in 1975-76 by about 90 on the average. The prisons are nearing, if indeed they are not at, maximum capacity. The population at the Kearney Youth Development Center exceeded budget expectations by over 50 on the average during the first three months of this fiscal year.

Corrections authorities attribute the increase in the adult male population to increased intake, mainly from Douglas County. Apparently judges are sentencing more people to prison in recent months; evidence that judges are getting "tougher," and handing out longer sentences, too, for specific crimes. The increase in the Kearney juvenile population is likely a short-range problem. Although intake is up, the major cause for the increase is a slowing in the release rate due to the implementation of the positive peer culture group program.

But the trend toward maximum prison populations exists in Nebraska, as elsewhere around the nation.

If the reaction to the steadily rising crime figures runs as it appears it will, and society demands the hard-line approach to dealing with offenders, the problem will be intensified. Another problem is, however, that it is easier for people to holler for tougher judges and longer sentences and more offenders in jail than it is for them to want to cough up tax money for more prison space and humane prison conditions.

In Nebraska it is taking an extraordinarily long time to build new prison facilities. The effort to construct a new reformatory is ostensibly under way, but with a restricted tax and revenue situation, it will be tempting to want to put it off again.

But the handwriting is on the wall. Just when it appeared that the emphasis in corrections was to be keeping people out of prison, a renewed emphasis on incarceration can be expected. Current figures bear that out. Correspondingly, it will be society's responsibility to provide additional facilities and improved conditions in many of the nation's prisons.

ON TARGET

By DON WALTON

Look for an upsuge in Nebraska's economy next May.

Although somewhat limited in their spending patterns this time around, a mob of presidential candidates is likely to descend on Nebraskanas next spring prior to the May 11 presidential primary election.

In the middle of the nation's 30 presidential primaries, Nebraska holds an enviable position.

It isn't as important a primary as many of them.

And if it occurred on the same date, or the same week, as an election in one of the more populous or swing states, the candidates wouldn't be able to spend time campaigning here. They would be in the more important state.

Fortunately for Nebraskans, that will not be the case next year.

The only presidential primary elections which occur within a week of May 11 are the Tennessee contest on May 6 and the West Virginia election on May 11.

Candidates will be occupied the week before with May 4 elections in Indiana, Alabama, Georgia and the District of Columbia.

And the week after Nebraska's elections, the candidates must choose between May 18 primaries in Michigan and Maryland.

Nebraska's fortunate position in the middle of that schedule points toward major campaign efforts in the state by the candidates who have survived the earlier primary tests.

Fourteen primary elections will have been held before the Nebraska date, among them New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Florida, Illinois, New York, Wisconsin, Pennylvania and Texas.

Obviously, some of the presidential hopefuls will have been knocked out of the race before they ever reach Nebraska.

Nebraska Democrats, although not exactly liberal, have usually chosen liberals in the presidential primary tests. But that's because those candidates were the best organized and spent the most time here on the campaign circuit.

It is probably fair to guess that Hubert Humphrey was closer to the political philosophy of more Nebraska Democrats than was George McGovern in 1972. But McGovern, with better organization and harder work, won the 1972 primary.

Nebraska Republicans usually choose the more conservative candidate — if he is organized and if he campaigns But the long record of conservative support does not yet include a vote against an incumbent Republican President.

In the continued jockeying for position on tax policy among the Exon administration, the Legislature and the State Board of Equalization, it is the Legislature which will be on the spot in coming months.

Next year is an election year.

But the governor is not a candidate in next year's elections. And neither is any other member of the Board of Equalization.

Roughly one-half of the senators will be candidates for re-election. One or more might enter a congressional tussle.

If voters are unhappy with the 1976 tax rate increase, those senators are the ones who could be in trouble. And tax rates could rise again before next November's elections.

So the pressure is on the Legislature when it meets next January.

Not very many public servants manage to keep their mind on their duties without at least one eye cast on the next election. Survival is an overwhelming political instinct.

Not very many public servants are willing to pay the price for unpopular decisions. Not many are willing to do their best for one term, ignoring popular will if they must, and leaving their future to the voters.

Most who do serve nobly — for one term

Fitting Deeds To Our Words

BOSTON — On Nov. 12 the chief American delegate to the U.N., Daniel Patrick Moynihan, introduced a resolution urging the release of political prisoners around the world. Speaking for the idea, Moynihan denounced "the selective morality of the United Nations in matters of human rights."

On that same day a highly respected Chilean public health expert, Dr. Hugo Behm, a refugee from the torturers who run his country, was denied a visa to visit the United States. An American consul in Panama said he had information, apparently from Chile, that Behm belonged to "a surversive organization." Behm asked which; he said he had never belonged to any political group. The consul refused to say.

That is an example, a very small one, of the increasingly embarrassing gap between American words and deeds on human rights. The Behm decision proved so embarrassing that it was unsupportable. Behm was coming here to be honored by the American Public Health Association, and after protests from some of its members, the State Department waived the objection and allowed a brief visit. But other visa applicants remain excluded for similar reasons.

For the United States to deny visas on political grounds is particularly ironic after our claim that the Helsinki Agreement was a victory for freedom of movement. But in more profound ways, going to the whole question of official attitudes toward human rights, the recent American record is dismal.

Chile is a notorious case in point. The U.S. helped to install the junta and then to keep it in power. Congress, outraged, limited economic aid to Chile to $25 million a year, but the Ford administration found ways to avoid that ceiling. It supplied large amounts of food on easy terms and offered loans and loan guarantees — to a total of more than $250 million in fiscal 1975.

The U.S. could have supported the Chilean military regime and still given some effective help to its victims. But there, too, the record is dim. European countries have been quicker to offer asylum and to condemn the junta's torture and murder. An American program for Chilean refugees was announced last summer, but red tape has slowed it so much that to date only about half a dozen heads of families have been admitted.

In Chile, in Brazil, in the Soviet Union and South Korea and many other places, the American government has appeared insensitive to the grossest inhumanity. That fact is in strange contrast to our feelings and legal standards at home. Human rights are better safeguarded in this country than in most. What goes wrong, or different, when the American government operates abroad?

Of course the realities are different abroad. Our government is not generally restrained by the constitutional rules that limit it at home, with the judicial opinions that have done so much to keep the moral strain in our politics. The United States must deal with some nasty governments, and we know by now the danger of trying to remake the world in our image.

But still, there are degrees in these things. We can limit our involvement with repressive governments, and we can make clear our ideals. It is desirable to do so for practical, not moralistic reasons — because maintaining our standards and our self-respect increases American influence.

MOYNIHAN
. . . Our U.N. delegate provided proper words . . .

All this has come to be understood in many quarters in Washington. In the State Department itself there are now officials designated to deal with human rights issues, and they do have an effect on the margins. One example came in the admission of Behm.

Congress, too, has moved to make concern for human rights an element in U.S. foreign policy. In September the House by a large margin approved an amendment by Rep. Tom Harkin of Iowa to deny economic aid to governments engaging in "gross violations" of humanity, such as torture. The Senate adopted a similar provision, and the language is now being worked out in conference.

But Secretary of State Kissinger disagrees. Last week he refused to comply with a mandate of Congress and specify why we are giving military aid to countries that violate human rights. The State Department had a country-by-country report ready but dropped it on his orders. His reasoning was that most of the world does terrible things, anyway — and that we can help best by "quiet but forceful diplomacy." Yes, as in cringing to the Soviet attitude on Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn.

The result of Kissinger's stubborn resistance to weighing human rights in our policy may be damaging even in his own terms. It will probably provoke Congress to tighter restrictions on executive discretion. Sen. Alan Cranston of California called Kissinger's attitude on human rights one of "benign neglect" and said he would work to include a tougher provision in this year's military aid bill.

No American government is likely to be evangelistic on these issues, and perhaps no one should be. What is needed, rather, is a consistent, thoughtful symbol to the world of the values that gave birth to this country and that still are its claim to greatness. For that we would have to have a secretary of state who understood those values — one who when asked about human rights would not answer, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

Crime And Gun Control

Lincoln, Neb.

The FBI releases its crime statistics and The Star of Nov. 18 and its anti-gun comrades take up a cry for a panacea for the world's ills — ban the guns! In outrage at the instrument of the crime, the real reason for the crime — the perpetrator — is totally ignored.

Isn't it interesting that the crime upswing parallels the downswing in the economy?

Isn't it interesting that the FBI doesn't list firearms as a cause of crime?

Isn't it interesting that Omaha, which has a registration law, has 2½ times the number of homicides that Lincoln has, with no such law?

Isn't it interesting that New York, with the most restrictive gun-control law (Sullivan) in the country, making it next to impossible for a common citizen to buy a handgun, has the highest homicide rate in the country?

Gun registration will not work!

First — Only an idiot believes that a common criminal will voluntarily register his/her firearm.

Second — If the firearm is not abandoned, what is there to trace? If it is abandoned, chances are the identification will be filed off or it will turn up as stolen.

Third — Increasing regulation of firearms (Yes, Virginia, there are many laws on guns) has been met only with increasing crime. Very few penalties are meted out to those who abuse firearms.

We need look no farther than Omaha to see examples of this. Several weeks ago a man was caught with an unregistered machine-gun. This is in violation of state law and federal law (National Firearms Act, 1934) punishable by up to 10 years in jail and a $10,000 fine. Yet he is free and the case is being "investigated" for probation!

The Star says that public opinion polls support stricter gun control, yet the politicians do nothing. Maybe because when it comes time to act, the people and the politicians take a good look at the facts and the realities and overlook the half-truths and innuendos such as The Star editorial.

The paranoia spoken of is the paranoia of having to face yet another big, cumbersome, expensive and ineffective example of governmental bureaucracy, because of a minority's actions.

Until such time as the politicians take steps to control the slaughterers and intimidators, they have no right to utter one word about the need for tougher gun laws.

I close with one more interesting fact. One of the political leaders of the gun-control movement, Sen. Edward Kennedy, cannot legally buy a gun in the United States. Think about it.

'The Lockhorns' Sexist?

Lincoln, Neb.

I have often noticed "The Lockhorns" cartoon that appears daily in The Star and the philosophy that is manifested in the stereotype it represents, one of weak, ineffective and incompetent women.

I feel this concept is grossly overstated and exaggerated. It is not humorous and only assists in fostering this particular stereotype.

It is truly sexist and I would think it should not appear in a newspaper whose philosophy is a "people-oriented" one.

An Alternate Solution

Lincoln, Neb.

I read with interest The Star article reporting the method used by University of Nebraska police to immobilize automobiles parked illegally on campus. The article further stated that the city of Lincoln was considering the use of "boots" as a method of discouraging illegal parking.

Before the city of Lincoln invests in any "boots" may I suggest they consider the method used in Mexico to deal with law-breakers. It is a simple solution and one that will cost the taxpayer little. Each traffic policeman is armed with a screwdriver which he uses to remove the license plates of illegally parked automobiles. The license plates are taken to the police station and kept there until the owner shows up to claim them and pay a fine.

For the price of a screwdriver, it just might help remedy the situation.

SOS From The Fleet

WASHINGTON — Conditions aboard some of the Navy's proudest ships are shocking and shameful. We have written in the past about the deteriorating fleet. Our columns have brought a deluge of additional complaints, which we have verified.

On the carrier Hancock, a young seaman plunged to his death because of Navy negligence On the carrier Saratoga, sailors choked at night in squalid, 120-degree bunkrooms. The roach-infested destroyer tender Sierra served food that was "barely edible."

Other Navy craft have put out to sea on special missions, intended to teach how to survive a nuclear attack, when they were so dilapidated they could barely survive the trip out of the harbor.

The creaky old carrier Saratoga is a sad symbol of the state of the modern Navy.

A few weeks ago, the carrier set out on a training cruise. But its commander, Capt. Robert Dunn, had to head into port five days early because it was in no condition to remain at sea.

Despite Dunn's best efforts, crewmen had to work 12 to 18 hours a day simply to keep the Saratoga moving. The engineers and firemen often had no showers to wash off the grime of their long drudgery.

The bathrooms were dirty, the toilets and urinals clogged. Chow lines were so long that crewmen complained it sometimes took two hours to get served. Dunn insisted, however, that the maximum was 45 minutes. Enlisted men, for lack of cold milk and water, often drank warm soda pop with their meals.

At sea, a fire broke out and tied up some crewmen all night. Yet they were summoned to reveille at 6 a.m. When they finally straggled to their bunks, the air-conditioner was broken, and they sweltered.

One enlisted men's lounge, established for a dozen men, usually thronged with as many as 50. Yet crowding became so bad that the lounge was converted into bunk space. This left many sailors with no convenient space to write letters or watch TV.

Yet, when a gold-braided inspection team arrived on board, they virtually ignored the enlisted men's plight but growled about missing light bulbs, toothbrush holders and towel holders in the officers' rooms. The Navy inspectors were positively indignant, for instance, about an officer's stuck drawer.

The team's confidential inspection report, nevertheless, found the Saratoga to be plagued with operational problems. For example, the war room's intercom was "unable to communicate with all stations," a coaxial cable was loose, electrical circuits had shorted and window wipers on the bridge were missing or non-functioning.

☆ ☆ ☆

On another carrier, the Hancock, we learned that 19-year-old seaman apprentice, Timothy Johnston, plunged 35 feet to a concrete landing while he was painting. His death can be attributed directly to Navy negligence.

For the Navy had ignored federal safety regulations, which require sailors working over the ship's side to wear safety lines. There weren't even any safety harnesses on board the day Johnston fell.

The Navy finally reopened the case after Sens. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., intervened. Jackson is presently looking into the complaint of a Navy industrial safety expert. Phelps Hobart, who wrote: "Much of the Navy's safety program is directed at protecting admirals, not sailors."

The main purpose of the Navy's safety programs, he charged, was to keep the Navy operational, not to save lives.

"I only wish I could tell the truth and reveal the deplorable safety and health conditions with the Department of the Navy," the safety specialist declared.

To the Navy's credit, it made documents available to us and is now taking disciplinary action against the officers responsible for Johnston's death.

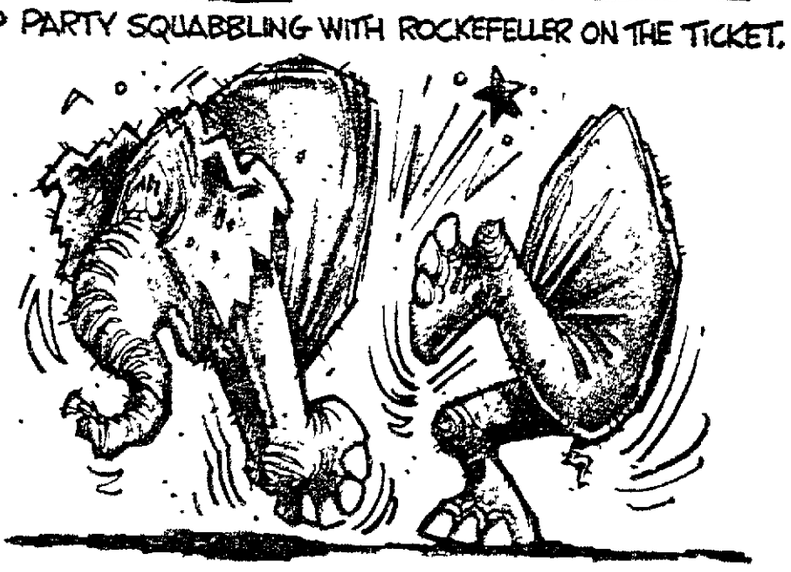

The General Accounting Office, spurred by such tragedies, is also doing an investigation of government on-the-job safety, which has turned up glaring deficiencies in both military and civilian agencies.

The Navy, for its part, cites the 1975 President's Safety Award as evidence of its attention to safety. As in the past, the Navy also insists it is doing the best it can to repair the broken-down ships.

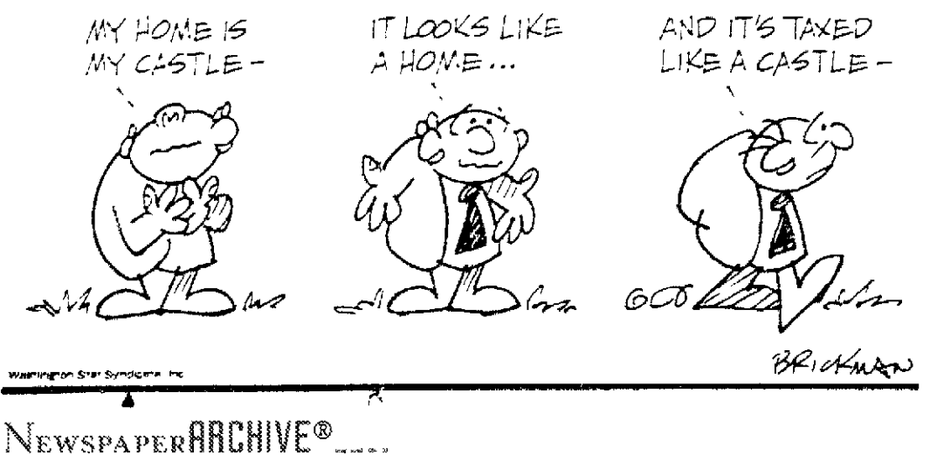

Yet somehow, there seems to be plenty of funds to maintain the admirals' style of living. Few have given up their limousine service, dismissed their enlisted servants, reduced their office acreage or turned in their fancy furniture.

The FBI releases its crime statistics and The Star of Nov. 18 and its anti-gun comrades take up a cry for a panacea for the world's ills — ban the guns! In outrage at the instrument of the crime, the real reason for the crime — the perpetrator — is totally ignored.

Isn't it interesting that the crime upswing parallels the downswing in the economy?

Isn't it interesting that the FBI doesn't list firearms as a cause of crime?

Isn't it interesting that Omaha, which has a registration law, has 2½ times the number of homicides that Lincoln has, with no such law?

Isn't it interesting that New York, with the most restrictive gun-control law (Sullivan) in the country, making it next to impossible for a common citizen to buy a handgun, has the highest homicide rate in the country?

Gun registration will not work!

First — Only an idiot believes that a common criminal will voluntarily register his/her firearm.

Second — If the firearm is not abandoned, what is there to trace? If it is abandoned, chances are the identification will be filed off or it will turn up as stolen.

Third — Increasing regulation of firearms (Yes, Virginia, there are many laws on guns) has been met only with increasing crime. Very few penalties are meted out to those who abuse firearms.

We need look no farther than Omaha to see examples of this. Several weeks ago a man was caught with an unregistered machine-gun. This is in violation of state law and federal law (National Firearms Act, 1934) punishable by up to 10 years in jail and a $10,000 fine. Yet he is free and the case is being "investigated" for probation!

The Star says that public opinion polls support stricter gun control, yet the politicians do nothing. Maybe because when it comes time to act, the people and the politicians take a good look at the facts and the realities and overlook the half-truths and innuendos such as The Star editorial.

The paranoia spoken of is the paranoia of having to face yet another big, cumbersome, expensive and ineffective example of governmental bureaucracy, because of a minority's actions.

Until such time as the politicians take steps to control the slaughterers and intimidators, they have no right to utter one word about the need for tougher gun laws.

I close with one more interesting fact. One of the political leaders of the gun-control movement, Sen. Edward Kennedy, cannot legally buy a gun in the United States. Think about it.

'The Lockhorns' Sexist?

Lincoln, Neb.

I have often noticed "The Lockhorns" cartoon that appears daily in The Star and the philosophy that is manifested in the stereotype it represents, one of weak, ineffective and incompetent women.

I feel this concept is grossly overstated and exaggerated. It is not humorous and only assists in fostering this particular stereotype.

It is truly sexist and I would think it should not appear in a newspaper whose philosophy is a "people-oriented" one.

An Alternate Solution

Lincoln, Neb.

I read with interest The Star article reporting the method used by University of Nebraska police to immobilize automobiles parked illegally on campus. The article further stated that the city of Lincoln was considering the use of "boots" as a method of discouraging illegal parking.

Before the city of Lincoln invests in any "boots" may I suggest they consider the method used in Mexico to deal with law-breakers. It is a simple solution and one that will cost the taxpayer little. Each traffic policeman is armed with a screwdriver which he uses to remove the license plates of illegally parked automobiles. The license plates are taken to the police station and kept there until the owner shows up to claim them and pay a fine.

For the price of a screwdriver, it just might help remedy the situation.

TAXPAYER

ON TARGET

By DON WALTON

Look for an upsuge in Nebraska's economy next May.

Although somewhat limited in their spending patterns this time around, a mob of presidential candidates is likely to descend on Nebraskanas next spring prior to the May 11 presidential primary election.

In the middle of the nation's 30 presidential primaries, Nebraska holds an enviable position.

It isn't as important a primary as many of them.

And if it occurred on the same date, or the same week, as an election in one of the more populous or swing states, the candidates wouldn't be able to spend time campaigning here. They would be in the more important state.

Fortunately for Nebraskans, that will not be the case next year.

The only presidential primary elections which occur within a week of May 11 are the Tennessee contest on May 6 and the West Virginia election on May 11.

Candidates will be occupied the week before with May 4 elections in Indiana, Alabama, Georgia and the District of Columbia.

And the week after Nebraska's elections, the candidates must choose between May 18 primaries in Michigan and Maryland.

Nebraska's fortunate position in the middle of that schedule points toward major campaign efforts in the state by the candidates who have survived the earlier primary tests.

Fourteen primary elections will have been held before the Nebraska date, among them New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Florida, Illinois, New York, Wisconsin, Pennylvania and Texas.

Obviously, some of the presidential hopefuls will have been knocked out of the race before they ever reach Nebraska.

Nebraska Democrats, although not exactly liberal, have usually chosen liberals in the presidential primary tests. But that's because those candidates were the best organized and spent the most time here on the campaign circuit.

It is probably fair to guess that Hubert Humphrey was closer to the political philosophy of more Nebraska Democrats than was George McGovern in 1972. But McGovern, with better organization and harder work, won the 1972 primary.

Nebraska Republicans usually choose the more conservative candidate — if he is organized and if he campaigns. But the long record of conservative support does not yet include a vote against an incumbent Republican President.

In the continued jockeying for position on tax policy among the Exon administration, the Legislature and the State Board of Equalization, it is the Legislature which will be on the spot in coming months.

Next year is an election year.

But the governor is not a candidate in next year's elections. And neither is any other member of the Board of Equalization.

Roughly one-half of the senators will be candidates for re-election. One or more might enter a congressional tussle.

If voters are unhappy with the 1976 tax rate increase, those senators are the ones who could be in trouble. And tax rates could rise again before next November's elections.

So the pressure is on the Legislature when it meets next January.

Not very many public servants manage to keep their mind on their duties without at least one eye cast on the next election. Survival is an overwhelming political instinct.

Not very many public servants are willing to pay the price for unpopular decisions. Not many are willing to do their best for one term, ignoring popular will if they must, and leaving their future to the voters.

Most who do serve nobly — for one term.

SOS From The Fleet

WASHINGTON — Conditions aboard some of the Navy's proudest ships are shocking and shameful. We have written in the past about the deteriorating fleet. Our columns have brought a deluge of additional complaints, which we have verified.

On the carrier Hancock, a young seaman plunged to his death because of Navy negligence. On the carrier Saratoga, sailors choked at night in squalid, 120-degree bunkrooms. The roach-infested destroyer tender Sierra served food that was "barely edible."

Other Navy craft have put out to sea on special missions, intended to teach how to survive a nuclear attack, when they were so dilapidated they could barely survive the trip out of the harbor.

The creaky old carrier Saratoga is a sad symbol of the state of the modern Navy.

A few weeks ago, the carrier set out on a training cruise. But its commander, Capt. Robert Dunn, had to head into port five days early because it was in no condition to remain at sea.

Despite Dunn's best efforts, crewmen had to work 12 to 18 hours a day simply to keep the Saratoga moving. The engineers and firemen often had no showers to wash off the grime of their long drudgery.

The bathrooms were dirty, the toilets and urinals clogged. Chow lines were so long that crewmen complained it sometimes took two hours to get served. Dunn insisted, however, that the maximum was 45 minutes. Enlisted men, for lack of cold milk and water, often drank warm soda pop with their meals.

At sea, a fire broke out and tied up some crewmen all night. Yet they were summoned to reveille at 6 a.m. When they finally straggled to their bunks, the air-conditioner was broken, and they sweltered.

One enlisted men's lounge, established for a dozen men, usually thronged with as many as 50. Yet crowding became so bad that the lounge was converted into bunk space. This left many sailors with no convenient space to write letters or watch TV.

Yet, when a gold-braided inspection team arrived on board, they virtually ignored the enlisted men's plight but growled about missing light bulbs, toothbrush holders and towel holders in the officers' rooms. The Navy inspectors were positively indignant, for instance, about an officer's stuck drawer.

The team's confidential inspection report, nevertheless, found the Saratoga to be plagued with operational problems. For example, the war room's intercom was "unable to communicate with all stations," a coaxial cable was loose, electrical circuits had shorted and window wipers on the bridge were missing or non-functioning.

☆ ☆ ☆

On another carrier, the Hancock, we learned that 19-year-old seaman apprentice, Timothy Johnston, plunged 35 feet to a concrete landing while he was painting. His death can be attributed directly to Navy negligence.

For the Navy had ignored federal safety regulations, which require sailors working over the ship's side to wear safety lines. There weren't even any safety harnesses on board the day Johnston fell.

The Navy finally reopened the case after Sens. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., intervened. Jackson is presently looking into the complaint of a Navy industrial safety expert, Phelps Hobart, who wrote: "Much of the Navy's safety program is directed at protecting admirals, not sailors."

The main purpose of the Navy's safety programs, he charged, was to keep the Navy operational, not to save lives.

"I only wish I could tell the truth and reveal the deplorable safety and health conditions with the Department of the Navy," the safety specialist declared.

To the Navy's credit, it made documents available to us and is now taking disciplinary action against the officers responsible for Johnston's death.

The General Accounting Office, spurred by such tragedies, is also doing an investigation of government on-the-job safety, which has turned up glaring deficiencies in both military and civilian agencies.

The Navy, for its part, cites the 1975 President's Safety Award as evidence of its attention to safety. As in the past, the Navy also insists it is doing the best it can to repair the broken-down ships.

Yet somehow, there seems to be plenty of funds to maintain the admirals' style of living. Few have given up their limousine service, dismissed their enlisted servants, reduced their office acreage or turned in their fancy furniture.

San Francisco — Many changes in the art of bank robbing since the Dalton boys rode into Coffeyville, Kansas There were no hidden cameras taking pictures No radio to warn police

The local citizens came out of the barber shop and the hardware store and the dentist's office And they came out shooting It was a minor war Bank robbing was hard labor in those glorious days

A man I know in computer business told me "Any computer can be beaten by a man who knows how The computer is not infallible"

☆ ☆ ☆

It seems computers have been gimmicked to produce sudden riches A chap who shall be nameless (because the police don't know it and he's probably in Brazil by now) hit upon an idea of making the computer work for him

He took the bank's counter deposit slips — the ones at the desk with the chained ball points He replaced them with look alike slips except these were coded to his account

Thus everybody who deposited helped the silent heist The computer read the magnetic code on the slip and sent it clunk! — into the account of the robber When it reached a hundred thousand dollars, he drew it out and adios, muchachos

☆ ☆ ☆

Computers can be changed slightly to funnel money into different pockets than the original programming called for.

The computer man said "That's the end product of the computer. Sending the money to the right place You wouldn't have to do the whole program over again Just change the happy ending"

☆ ☆ ☆

So bank robbing enters the space and computer age Nearly all bank holdups are done by amateurs anyway

In Los Angeles a lady known as "Grandma" held up a string of dampers like taking candy from a kid

She used the bank s deposit slips and chained ball points to write the notes "I am desperate Hand over all your money"

She gave the teller a brown sack Police discovered she got them at the nearest supermarket

She had no overhead at all It was free enterprise to be admired She was an elderly type Hence "Grandma" to the Johnny Nabs I don't think they ever caught her

Iowa Cattle Up 19%

Des Moines (UPI) — Iowa farmers had 1,130,000 cattle on feed for slaughter as of Nov. 1, up 1% from a year earlier and up 19% from a month earlier, the Iowa Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said.

NBC Center Welcomes DKQ

As you probably know, Dain, Kalman & Quail, Incorporated, is one of the country's largest regional investment brokerage and investment banking firms. They have 21 offices throughout a 7 state area of the Midwest. Their local office has been located at 1200 "O" Street, but in February, 1976, they will move to the new NBC Center. We're proud that a company of this stature is our first tenant.

When we asked DKQ Vice President Harry Ware why he chose the new NBC Center, he said, "It's the heart of Lincoln's business and financial community and architecturally a tribute to the spirit of growth in downtown Lincoln."

If you're considering a move, space can be reserved in this unique new building through the Alfred G. Thomsen Company, exclusive agent for NBC Center. Call today for full leasing details.

Survey Shows:

Wallace, Reagan Power Based On 3rd-Party Vote

By LOUIS HARRIS

Louis Harris

Impact Crucial

Although Alabama Gov. George Wallace and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan are running in earnest for their parties' regular nominations for President next year, their real power is based on those who would vote for them if they ran on third-party tickets. In the end, the real clout of Reagan and Wallace is the hard-core constituency each possesses.

When run as the candidates of their respective parties, both men lose by wide margins. As the Democratic nominee, Wallace has consistently run behind President Ford by nearly 30 points, and Regan runs 10 to 15 points behind leading Democrats as the GOP standard-bearer. Yet, a recent harris Survey conducted among 1,271 likely voters in the 1976 election is revealing about the crucial power that the two hold in their parties.

In the recent survey, President Ford is assumed to be the Republican nominee and Sen. Edward Kennedy the Democratic standard-bearer. Kennedy was chosen, not because he is likely to be the nominee, but because he has consistently run the strongest race of all Democrats tested for 1976.

Here is how the trial runs turned out:

—In a Ford-Kennedy-Wallace race, the President receives 37.5% of the vote, the Massachusetts Democrat an identical 37 5 and Wallace a substantial 20% as a third-party candidate, with the remaining 5% undecided.

The significant conclusion is that as a third-party candidate, George Wallace could make it impossible for either major party nominee to win the general election. Such an outcome could throw the race into the House of Representatives.

This prospect suggests why neither party would welcome a third-party campaign by Wallace in 1976, particularly the Democrats. The fact that Wallace takes more votes away from President Ford than from Sen. Kennedy cannot obsure the fact that he has substantial appeal to hard-core Democrats as well as to independents and Republicans.

—In a Ford-Kennedy-Reagan contest, President Ford receives no more than 34% of the vote, Sen. Kennedy 41% and former Gov. Reagan 21%, with the remaining 4% undecided.

In this test, it is immediately apparent that Reagan could cost Gerald Ford the election. While Reagan's vote as a third-party candidate would be only one point higher than Wallace's, he would draw off a critical 3.5% more from Ford than Kennedy and give the Democrat a relatively safe seven-point margin in the final outcome.

If people have wondered why President Ford seems so obsessed with his challenge from Reagan, these results go a long way toward explaining why.

Although both Reagan and Wallace apparently have a hard-core strength of one in five voters in next year's election, they do not necessarily appeal to the same parts of the electorate. Here is what a comparison of the Reagan and Wallace potentials show:

—On a regional basis, either a Reagan or Wallace third-party candidacy would likely give both the East and the West to the Democrats. But Reagan could cost Ford his own home territory of the Midwest by drawing off enough conservatives to give it to the Democrats. In the South, Wallace would garner enough normal Democratic strength to make a Ford victory there almost certain. By the same token, Reagan's appeal in the South could make that region a toss-up — even with Kennedy the Democratic nominee — by draining conservative Ford strength.

—On a sex basis, both Wallace and Reagan have enough appeal among men to cost President Ford the vote among males. But among women, where Wallace is weak and Reagan strong, the former California governor could cost Ford the election. With Wallace in the race, Ford wins the women's vote by a narrow 39-37% margin. With Reagan as a third-party candidate, Ford loses the women's vote by 39-24%.

The key differences between the two third-party potential candidates are that Reagan is stronger than Wallace in the West and among suburban voters, older people, the college-educated, business executives and professionals, women, higher income people, Republicans and those who voted for Richard Nixon in 1972. Wallace is stronger than Reagan in the South and among small town and rural voters, the least educated, low-income voters, skilled labor, Democrats and those who have voted for third-party candidates in the past.

As 1976 wings into view, it is clear that George Wallace and Ronald Regan are more powerful as thurd-party possibilitites than they are within their own parties. But in the upcoming presidential campaign, this makes them two crucially important politicans.

Escapees Jailed In York

York (AP) — Two Indiana men, who escaped from the Vigo County Jail hospital at Terre Haute early Friday by sawing their way through bars, were being held Sunday at the York County Jail in York.

State Patrol and York County authorities said the pair was arrested on Interstate 80 by state troopers Sunday, after an all-points bulletin had been put out on them.

They were identified as Scott Wyles, 18, of Terre Haute, and Joe Cunningham, 17, of Indianapolis.

Indiana authorities said Wyles was being held on a first degree murder charge in connection with the shooting last August of Michael Wilkie, 17, a Terre Haute gas station attendant.

They said Cunningham had been jailed on bad check charges.

Officers said a hacksaw blade was used to saw bars in the hospital ward. The blade was believed to have been smuggled in during visiting hours Thursday night.

Indiana authorities said Wyles had been placed in the hospital ward for a pre-trial psychiatric examination.

Nebraska State Troopers said the car they were driving Sunday was reported stolen in Terre Haute. Neither offered resistance when arrested.

Parking May Be Opposed

Omaha (AP) — The University of Nebraska at Omaha plan to use the Elmwood Park ravine for parking may find opposition when the program comes before the City Council Tuesday.

Five of seven councilmen have said in interviews that they oppose the plan. The other two said they would like to hear the arguments of the school first.

Councilman Jerry Hassett said, "The ravine area is worthless. It's not a park." He says the park is used by students for parking presently.

Hassett was expected to introduce a resolution favoring conversion of the ravine to a parking lot.

University officials have estimated the cost at $2.5 million, but City Parks and Recration Director Clarence Shafer places a price of $3.8 million on the land.

Unusual Fairbury Office Building Sold

Fairbury — Vacant for all but a few months since its construction in 1968, an unusual office building in downtown Fairbury has been sold.

The late George Skultety, a well-known attorney who had practiced here 37 years, died of a heart attack shortly after moving into the structure. It is located on the east side of Fairbury's square.

Featuring highly veined verdigreen marble and pecan-inlaid walnut, the showcase building has been a local conversation piece because of its luxuriousness. It has been visited by contractors, architects and attorneys from several states.

The structure was sold by Skultety's widow, Lucile, to several members of the local Rosener family. It will be occupied immediately by Douglas Rosener, a young attorney who established a Fairbury practice several months ago.

Also sharing in the purchase were his brothers, Ronald, a law student at Texas University, and Greg, a University of Nebraska medical student. The three are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rosener.

Two cousins of the threesome, Tommy and Jerry Rosener, also became part-owners. They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rosener and have local farming interests.

Fall In Feedlot Kills Man, 50

Brule (AP) — Keith County authorities said 50-year-old Dale Poland of Berwyn died Friday of injuries received in a 80-foot fall at a feedlot southwest of Brule.

Sheriff Eldon Webb, who investigated the death, said Poland was working outside a feed-mixing mill in a one-man electric elevator when the elevator fell to the ground.

Poland was employed by an agricultural contracting firm.

4¢ Raise Rejected

Austin, Tex. (AP) — Sheriff Raymond Frank didn't want much, just a four-cent raise for next year, but Travis County commissioners rejected it. Frank's proposal to round off his $20,499.96 salary at $20,500 would foul up accounting procedures, commissioners said.

AP's Hansell Dies; Hastings Native

Miami (AP) — Paul Hansell, who helped guide The Associated Press' coverage of the Cuban missile crisis and the dawn of the space age, died Saturday of cancer at the age of 69.

A Navy lieutenant commander in World War II, Hansell joined the AP in Omaha, Neb., in 1937 and served as chief of bureau at Little Rock, Ark., and Charlotte, N.C., before coming to Miami in 1960.

As bureau chief in Miami until 1971, Hansell directed news coverage of some of the nation's top stories for more than a decade, including the build-up of U.S. military might in south Florida during the missile crisis and the first American orbital flight by John H. Glenn Jr.

Consultant For Year

Hansell spent another year after his retirement traveling throughout the country as a consultant to The Associated Press on technical matters. He was named executive secretary of the Florida Society of Newspaper Editors in 1972, a post he held at the time of his death.

Hansell always was as close as the telephone when a big story broke. An enthusiastic golfer and bridge player, he always left staffers the telephone number of the links or the bridge game where he could be reached.

Hansell set up the only AP foreign service bureau on U.S. soil, a listening post at Key West which monitored Cuban radio and television after the Fidel Castro regime came to power on the island 90 miles to the south. Later, the monitoring post was moved to Miami.

A native of Hastings, Neb., Hansell was graduated from Hastings College with a B.S. degree, with majors in physics and mathematics. He also attended Carnegie Institute of Technology. He wrote technical papers for the Westinghouse Corp. before taking his first newspaper job — at $15 a week — on the Hastings Daily Tribune in 1934.

From there he moved to the now defunct Omaha Bee News, later joining the AP bureau in Omaha and serving as Nebraska state editor before transferring to Des Moines as Iowa state editor.

Hansell enlisted when Pearl Harbor was bombed. After the war, he was appointed chief of bureau at Little Rock. One year later he was named chief of bureau in Charlotte and directed AP operations in the Carolinas for 13 years.

Hansell's first wife, Esther, died in 1971. He is survived by his second wife, Dorothy and a son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Patrick "Pat" Hansell of Atlanta.

A memorial service is to be held Monday afternoon at the First Unitarian Church in Miami.

Insulation.

Did you know...

1. 25,000 homes in Lincoln have substandard insulation?
2. If these 25,000 homes were insulated properly, it would result in a 30% savings in energy required for heating and a 20% savings in energy required for summer cooling?
3. Electricity saved from those 25,000 homes during one summer could run the city's street lights for one year?
4. Adequate insulation can be written off in about three years from the savings realized in heating and air conditioning costs?

Those are the facts. Your Lincoln Electric System is vitally concerned with energy savings, and you are vitally interested in "shaving" your utility bills. Proper insulation is one way. There are many others. If you'd like to know more of these, drop in at your Lincoln Electric System's Business Office and ask for "Energy Conserving Hints".

Thanksgiving Just Another Workday

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

You've heard of a "busman's holiday," but what is a chef's holiday really like?

For some, Thanksgiving isn't a holiday but just another work day to provide tasty Thanksgiving Day dinners for those who choose to eat out on the holiday.

For others, it may be a true holiday with no cooking for the chef involved — just eating and possibly carving the turkey.

But whatever the schedule, a traditional Thanksgiving dinner with turkey and dressing, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie will be on the menu of that dinner the chef sits down to.

George West, chef at Tony and Luigi's restaurant where he has been employed for 28 years, said he and his family still go to "grandmother's house" for Thanksgiving dinner.

He said he may be called upon to carve the cooked bird, but all the preparation is done by his mother and aunt who prepare a family dinner at Thanksgiving and Christmas for about 20.

"It wouldn't be Thanksgiving if my mother and aunt didn't fix the dinner," he said, noting that they insist on this privilege.

Well-Guarded Recipes

West, who says he does some of the cooking at home, notes that it's pretty difficult to get a recipe from his mother and aunt who rather guard their secrets.

He said the family dinner used to include both candied sweet potatoes and whipped potatoes and both pumpkin and mince pies. But with everyone being weight conscious, he said, the menu is now limited to sweet potatoes and pumpkin pie.

This year's feast will feature sweet potatoes he grew as well as some his mother grew in her garden.

"Of course, they always have two kinds of dressing — oyster and regular sage dressing," he said, and the elder Mrs. West makes her own bread and cranberry sauce for the dinner.

Although the recipe was not available, West said the dinner always includes a molded cranberry salad which is made with cherry gelatin, ground raw cranberries, celery and oranges.

A dish which West says he likes to fix and goes well for Thanksgiving "if you like sweet potatoes and cranberries" is a sweet potatoes with a cranberry and brown sugar sauce, highlighted by honey, brandy and some spices.

John Aguilar, executive chef at the Lincoln Hilton, says his basic meal will be the same as he serves hotel patrons on Thanksgiving because the turkey and dressing for his family dinner will be prepared at the hotel where he will spend a considerable portion of the holiday.

He said he and his wife, who prepares most of the meals at home, usually start making preparations for a holiday about two days before.

And chefs don't always prepare everything from scratch. Aguilar says there are so many good companies making good convenience products that it doesn't always pay to make for example, one's own cranberry sauce.

Carrot Cake, Too

In addition to the traditional pumpkin pie, Aguilar said his wife makes a carrot cake and he usually helps with some of the side dishes which include green peas with water chesnuts with a heavy cream sauce.

One of Lincoln's youngest chefs, Gary Schneider, who has been executive chef at the Raddison Cornhusker for three years, says he rarely cooks at home.

"I go crazy in the kitchen at home," Schneider said, noting that a 3-foot cutting block, pots and pans hanging above the work area for ready access and sharp knives at the hotel make the home kitchen seem unhandy.

Because the hotel serves Thanksgiving dinner, the Schneider dinner will be late in the evening with Mrs. Schneider preparing most of it.

Although the dinner usually is the traditional turkey and dressing, molded salad, pecan pie, Schneider said this year "we're going all out" because they are having special guests who soon will be leaving Lincoln.

The 1975 dinner will feature roast duck with orange sauce, oyster dressing and possibly some wild rice.

A lover of tradition and family gatherings, Schneider says he hates to see people get away from the big family dinners and eat out on special days like Thanksgiving and Christmas.

He said he feels that it is unfortunate that sports events and other family member activities have taken precedence over the traditional get-togethers of those few days in a year.

A special feature of the Cornhusker which Schneider recommends as a side dish for Thanksgiving is the cheese custard, which resembles a souffle when it is baking and has the texture of a bread dressing.

"Our customers love it because it is light and has a great taste," Schneider said.

Probably one of the best-known chefs in Lincoln is Reinhold Rebensdorf, who is currently the chef at the Nebraska Club but served for more than 30 years as chef at the Cornhusker Hotel.

Meal Means Work

A believer that "there's nothing like that aroma in the kitchen" on special holidays. Rebensdorf contends when a meal doesn't require any work, "it's not any good."

Reiny, as he's called by his many friends and co-workers, doesn't stuff a turkey and doesn't fix sage dressing.

He contends that a turkey can be cooked in considerably less time when it isn't stuffed and the pan dressing can be just as good as that cooked in the bird.

A chef who never used a recipe nor followed a cookbook in his life, the veteran cook says he prefers a tom turkey over a hen and the secret is adequate seasoning and keeping the bird moist while it is cooking.

First, a tom turkey won't be as dry as a hen and a 20-pound bird provides a better yield than the smaller birds, Rebensdorf said.

"Like any other meat, the more mature the meat, the better the flavor," he said, noting that the seasonings are necessary because "if you take the seasonings away from it, you have no taste."

Although the foil tent or wrap around the turkey are good ways to cook the bird, Rebensdorf prefers using cheese cloth and basting the turkey every 20 to 30 minutes.

He says he boils the giblets and neck to strip and uses them in his dressing which he prefers "not too moist."

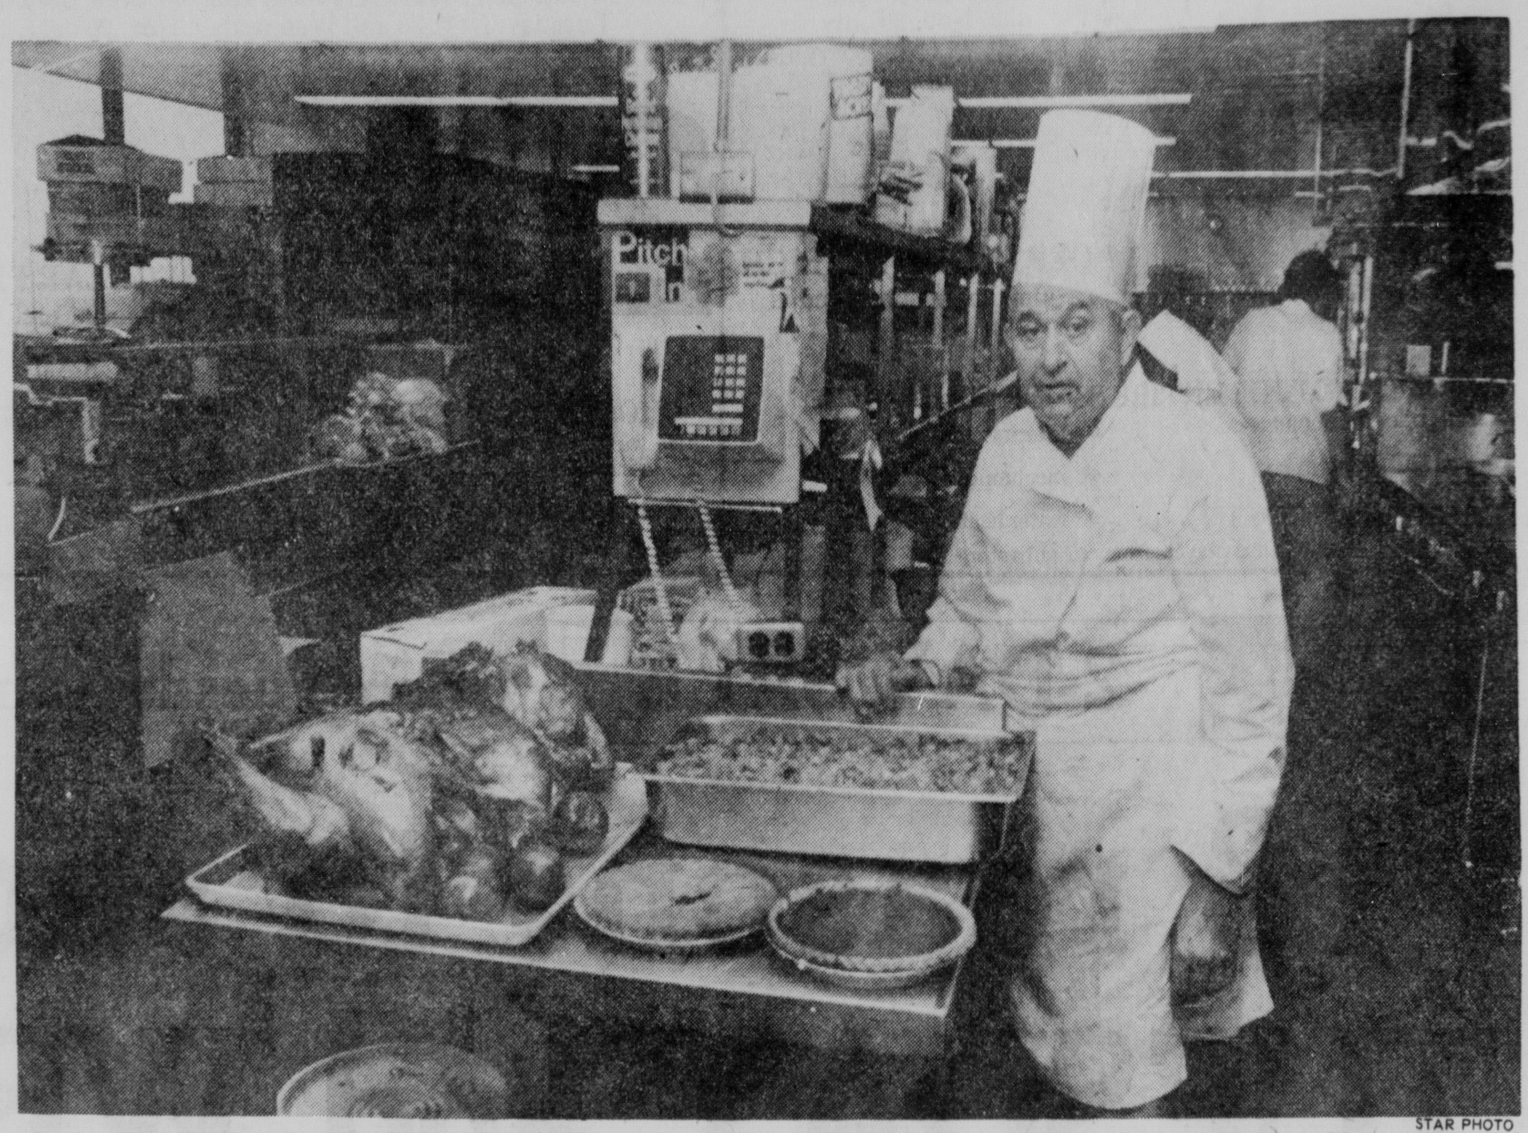

Onion, Celery Dressing

Rebensdorf makes a basic onion and celery dressing with cubed bread, margarine and a little allspice.

"If you want oyster dressing, you add a little mace, and if you want chestnut or hazelnut dressing, you leave it plain," he said, noting that people can use any spice they choose because many are "getting away from sage dressing."

The Rebensdorf family dinner with children and grandchildren also includes cranberry relish, Waldorf salad with "real mayonnaise and sometimes cherries and pineapple," acorn or hubbard squash, green beans with sliced mushrooms and almonds, glazed carrots, mashed potatoes, baked yams with marshmallows, pineapple and nuts.

To finish off the traditional dinner, Rebensdorf says they have pumpkin or mince pie with rum or brandy sauce, and occasionally have apple pie and cinnamon.

FTC Hits Products For Curls

(c) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — The Federal Trade Commission has clamped down on four manufacturers of hair-straightening products because of possible injuries to eyes and skin.

The companies are Johnson Products Co. and Soft Sheen Inc., both of Chicago; Perma-Strate Co., of Memphis; and Lustrasilk Corp., of St. Louis Park, Minn.

The FTC has accepted consent orders from the companies prohibiting them from saying that their products are safe. The companies also have agreed to warn their customers of possible health risks.

Lustrasilk agreed to state in future advertising that the product may cause eye irritation.

The other companies, which aim their products at black customers, will be required to state: "Warning. Follow directions carefully to avoid skin and scalp irritations, hair breakage and eye injury."

Johnson Products and Soft Sheen said required packaging and advertising modifications already have been made.

The FTC order also cited Bozell & Jacobs, the ad agency for Johnson's Ultra Sheen Permanent Creme Relaxer, and Franklin Lett Associates, agency for Soft Sheen's Mr. Cool and Miss Cool products. (Advertising for Johnson's Ultra Sheen will be shifted to a new advertising agency, Kuhn & Peris, next month.)

Like So Many Turkeys

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: This problem is making me physically ill. We live in the suburbs, and my husband works in the city. A bar-type restaurant recently opened near Vic's office that features a "go-go lunch" — complete with nude girls who dance and wait on tables. Vic and several men in his department lunch there daily now.

I am very much upset over this, and Vic knows it, but he makes light of it. He's a hot-blooded Latin, and just the thought of his being aroused by naked girls every day is more than I can bear.

How should I handle this? I've considered meeting him in town for lunches, but the trains don't run at the proper times. Also, I am tied down with small children.

PHILADEPHIA WIFE

DEAR PHILLY: What are your alternatives? Ordering your husband to quit going there for lunch? Sorry, but he's a big boy, and you aren't his mother.

I seriously doubt that the girls are nude. (Topless, maybe, but hardly naked at lunchtime.) After the novelty wears off — and it will — all that nudity will become about as exciting as looking at a lot of dressed turkeys hanging in a butcher-shop window!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my nose! I hate it.

I am 18 and have a fairly good personality and lots of friends especially at church. But everybody seems to notice my nose, and I think it's high time I did something about it.

What really hurts, Abby, is that there's this guy who goes to my church. I like him a lot, but because of my nose he calls me "747."

If you could see my nose, you'd know what I mean.

Where can I find a plastic surgeon who wouldn't charge me a fortune? Even the pastor, in a very nice way, told me I had a nose problem. Help!

"747"

DEAR "747": If you are convinced that you'll never land a guy with that 747, ask your family doctor if he knows a plastic surgon who would operate now, and let you make monthly payments.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't throw this in the wastebasket. I must have an answer.

Whenever my husband and I are invited out for dinner, it seems to be the rule that everyone should sit by someone else's spouse. If I ask to sit beside mine, I'm accused of being jealous or possessive.

Abby, I don't go out to dinner very often, so it's a special occasion to me, and I like to have my man near me. Sitting next to a stranger at dinner doesn't make me feel very romantic after I get home.

What is your opinion? These people are mostly my husband's business associates.

LONESOME

DEAR LONESOME: Most married people enjoy dinner conversation with someone other than their own spouses. That's the object of socializing. Perhaps you are slightly jealous, possessive or insecure. If so, admit it, and try to overcome it.

How does your husband feel about sitting next to a stranger at dinner? If he enjoys it, I suggest that you learn to enjoy it, too.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Opening lead - queen of clubs.

Harry Fishbein has had a long career as one of America's leading players, but it is doubtful that any hand he ever played caused more stir than this one.

Fishbein was West, defending against four spades. He led the queen of clubs and continued with the five, East cashing the A-K. On the third round of clubs Fishbein wanted to make a discard that would induce East to play a fourth round of clubs — since that would guarantee his queen of spades as the setting trick.

He solved the problem by discarding his ace of diamonds!

This extraordinary play had the desired effect. East realized that Fishbein was trying to get a special message across, and it was not difficult for him to conclude that his partner was not interested in either a diamond or a heart return at trick four.

Had Fishbein wanted a heart return, he could have asked for it by discarding a high heart; had he wanted a diamond return he could have asked for it by discarding a high diamond. The ace of diamonds discard could mean only one thing — that Fishbein wanted another club lead.

So East played a club and declarer went down one. With any other return, South would have made the contract.

Note that no other discard is as effective as the ace of diamonds. A low heart tells East not to lead a heart but suggests a diamond return rather than a club.

A low diamond discard from West would suggest a heart return rather than a club. Only the ace of diamonds discard could make it clear that West wanted a club return.

Northeast Area Still Snowbound

Lincoln Star Special

Five days after Nebraska's first winter storm, the northeastern corner of the state remains snowbound.

The Nebraska State Patrol Sunday reported most highways and county roads north of Norfolk are still closed. A few were open to only one-way travel.

U.S. 81 was reported open one-way to Yankton, S.D., and Neb. 12 was open one-way for eight miles west of Crofton. Snowplow crews spent 13 hours clearing the first three miles of Neb. 12 out of Crofton, cutting through drifts as high as 20 feet.

Mrs. Grant Jordan, who lives on a farm near Crofton, said milk producers in the area have been unable to move their milk to market. Cattle, grazing on stubble fields at the time of the storm, will not be reached for a few days.

Farmers in the area are attempting to round up cattle which are drifting over snow-covered fences. Mrs. Burt Evans of Bloomfield said there have been reports of cattle found dead and buried in the snow west of town.

County agents in the northeast said they have had reports of pig losses in the area.

Snow Covers Interstate 80

Heavy snow was falling in Omaha and Bellevue Sunday, leaving Interstate 80 snow-covered and icy as far west as Lincoln.

The National Weather Service predicted one to two inches accumulation in Lincoln by noon Monday, but only light snow had fallen Sunday night.

In the central part of the state, the Grand Island area was reported icy and snowpacked, with travel limited to one-way on Hwy. 74 south of Hastings.

Similar conditions were reported as far west as Ogallala, but road conditions were normal in the Scottsbluff area. Heavy, wet snow was falling at Chadron.

The weather service reported light snow falling from Valentine east to O'Neill.

Crash Near Gordon Fatal To 2 Persons

Gordon (AP) — Two persons were killed Sunday in a two-car crash four miles east of Gordon on Highway 20, officers said.

The victims were identified as Theresa Musfelt, 17, of Gordon, and Terry Fochtman, 21, of Gordon.

Investigators said the car driven by the girl was eastbound when she apparently tried to slow for a truck, lost control and the vehicle went into the westbound lane and was in collision with the second car.

Fochtman was a passenger in a car driven by Gregory Downing, 21, of Gordon. Another passenger in the car, Leonard Schwaderer of Gordon, also was hurt.

Fochtman and Downing were hospitalized with undetermined injuries.

Miss Musfelt was alone at the time of the crash.

The deaths raised the Nebraska highway fatality toll for the year to 343 as compared with 356 a year ago.

Grant Goes To Hastings College

Hastings (UPI) — The Nebraska committee for the humanities has announced a $985 grant to the Hastings College Sociology Department. Keith Blackledge of North Platte, committee chairman, said the funds would be used for a two-day symposium "2000 A.D. and Beyond: The Bicentennial in Perspective." Prof. Thomas Lane will direct the symposium.

Forage, Grassland Council To Meet

"Year of the Legume" is the theme of the winter meeting of the Nebraska Forage and Grassland Council to be held in Lincoln Jan. 15. One of the features of the session will be a discussion by Forrest Lee, Brownlee stockman, of legume and grass management on the ranch.

Page Couple Leave For Africa

Page — Mr. and Mrs. Carroll French of Page are on their way to Upper Volta, Africa, where they will work for the U.S. Agency for International Development under the Department of State. French will be a member of a team of rural development planners assigned to work in the Sahel region of Upper Volta. The Frenchs have taken a two-year leave of absence from the Board of Global Missions of the United Methodist Church. They served in Zaire, Africa, for the past 18 years in agricultural and medical mission work and returned from Africa last August.

North Platte To Host Crop Meet

North Platte — Members of the Nebraska Crop Improvement Association will gather here Jan. 19-20 for the organization's annual meeting. The premier seed grower award winners will be announced at the association's banquet. Dr. D. G. Hanway, chairman of the University of Nebraska Department of Agronomy, will make the presentations.

Haskins Heads Aurora Chamber

Aurora — New president of the Aurora Chamber of Commerce is Clyde A. Haskins, vice president of the Farmers State Bank and Trust Company. Other officers include Jim Koepke, vice president; Ward Andrews, treasurer; and Mrs. Donna Rasmussen, secretary-manager.

Council Bluffs Speech Set For NFO Candidate

Del Paulson, candidate for president of the National Farmers Organization, will speak at a rally at 8 p.m. Dec. 4 at the Council Bluffs Holiday Inn. Paulson will speak about his plans for a more effective NFO and will answer questions after the speech.

Paulson is opposing incumbent Oren Lee Staley for the position.

Paulson said he is seeking to advance the NFO through new leadership and improved procedures and policies, and provide regular financial information to members. He also seeks to limit the tenure of the NFO president and prohibit national directors from holding salaried jobs.

He also said he plans to use NFO's successful programs to solve the organization's dues problems.

Currently NFO special commodities coordinator, Paulson has held NFO offices on local, county, and district levels and has been a salaried employee of the NFO since March of 1971.

The NFO presidential election will be held at the NFO's twentieth annual convention in Kansas City, Mo., on Dec. 10-12 of this year.

Patrol To Get Body Armor

The Nebraska Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice has awarded a grant of $14,265 to the Nebraska State Patrol for purchase of protective vests or body armor. These purchases will complete the equipping of special teams within the NSP.

The commission will also administer funds of two other grant awards by contracting for services of the Nebraska Committee on Children and Youth. The committee will use one award of $16,585 to update the Compendium of Nebraska Laws Concerning Children and Youth. The compendium is a summary of all state statutes related to children and youth. It will be available to persons working in juvenile justice.

The only other updates of the compendium were done in 1956 and 1969. Since 1969, more than 200 state statutes have been amended and 300 added and 120 repealed.

Using the second grant award of $11,064, the committee will continue the Nebraska Juvenile Law Revision study. The committee studies similar juvenile related statutes in other states, compares them to Nebraska statutes and proposes "work drafts" amending existing Nebraska laws or proposed laws to the legislature.

The grants to state agencies were three of 27, which totaled $126,615.

The commission awards funds to state agencies and local units of government to assist those projects that will upgrade the criminal justice system in Nebraska and eventually reduce crime.

Northeast Area Still Snowbound

Lincoln Star Special

Five days after Nebraska's first winter storm, the northeastern corner of the state remains snowbound.

The Nebraska State Patrol Sunday reported most highways and county roads north of Norfolk are still closed. A few were open to only one-way travel.

U S 81 was reported open one-way to Yankton, S.D., and Neb. 12 was open one-way for eight miles west of Crofton. Snowplow crews spent 13 hours clearing the first three miles of Neb. 12 out of Crofton, cutting through drifts as high as 20 feet

Mrs. Grant Jordan, who lives on a farm near Crofton, said milk producers in the area have been unable to move their milk to market. Cattle, grazing on stubble fields at the time of the storm, will not be reached for a few days.

Farmers in the area are attempting to round up cattle which are drifting over snow-covered fences. Mrs. Burt Evans of Bloomfield said there have been reports of cattle found dead and buried in the snow west of town.

County agents in the northeast said they have had reports of pig losses in the area

Snow Covers Interstate 80

Heavy snow was falling in Omaha and Bellevue Sunday, leaving Interstate 80 snow-covered and icy as far west as Lincoln.

The National Weather Service predicted one to two inches accumulation in Lincoln by noon Monday, but only light snow had fallen Sunday night.

In the central part of the state, the Grand Island area was reported icy and snowpacked, with travel limited to one-way on Hwy. 74 south of Hastings.

Similar conditions were reported as far west as Ogallala, but road conditions were normal in the Scottsbluff area. Heavy, wet snow was falling at Chadron.

The weather service reported light snow falling from Valentine east to O'Neill.

Crash Near Gordon Fatal To 2 Persons

Gordon (AP) — Two persons were killed Sunday in a two-car crash four miles east of Gordon on Highway 20, officers said.

The victims were identified as Theresa Musfelt, 17, of Gordon, and Terry Fochtman, 21, of Gordon.

Investigators said the car driven by the girl was eastbound when she apparently tried to slow for a truck, lost control and the vehicle went into the westbound lane and was in collision with the second car.

Fochtman was a passenger in a car driven by Gregory Downing, 21, of Gordon. Another passenger in the car, Leonard Schwaderer of Gordon, also was hurt.

Fochtman and Downing were hospitalized with undetermined injuries.

Miss Musfelt was alone at the time of the crash.

The deaths raised the Nebraska highway fatality toll for the year to 343 as compared with 356 a year ago.

French Farms Draw Tourists

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

France is using its farmers as a tourist attraction as well as a food source.

Farmers from the United States and Canada are being invited to spend some time in the home of a typical French farm family.

American farmers have been particularly interested in learning how the French government supports a number of reforms that have moved French farmers into the 20th century of agriculture almost overnight.

Grapes are not a major crop, even though France is famous for its wines. France has 2.2 million acres in grapes compared to 22 million acres in grains such as corn, wheat, barley and oats. There are 33 million acres in pasture, which is of particular interest to American cattlemen seeking to learn about the French breeds being introduced into the United States.

French breeds were almost unknown in the United States until the Charolais breed was established here. There is no direct importation of cattle from France due to fear of hoof and mouth disease.

Fredrick Barden of Cofranimex, an official French company for exporting and importing livestock and semen for artifical insemination, has found himself arranging tours of farms.

"Farmers are welcomed on visits to France. They visit our farms with interpreters as needed, see how the chickens are raised, how cattle, pigs and sheep are handled, how machinery is used for plowing, planting and harvesting and other crop production techniques are done on French farms," Barden said.

"They sit down with the farm owner and his wife and share in wine and cheese he has made at home. Soon they are old friends," he added.

Barden recommends that farmers go to France during a big agricultural show, such as the Salon International de l'Agriculturel which is held in a giant exposition hall at Versailles, a suburb of Paris easily reached from the city by subway or bus.

Air France provides special tours at fees of less than $800 from most areas of the U.S. They are timed to take in the major shows in France and England.

American travel agents can time your trip to match the shows of the particular breed of cattle you want to see. Most of the major breeds such as the Flamande, Normande, Pie Rouge des Plaines, Pie Rouge (French Simmental), Maine-Anjou, Charolais, Parthenaise, Limousine, Gasconne, Blonde Aquitaine, Salers, Tarentaise, Abondance and Montbeliard all have national shows that are of interest to cattlemen from any nation.

French farming has come a long way since the end of World War II when many farmers ploughed their fields by using the family cow and the one surviving horse.

Most now use modern tractors, combines and livestock production techniques, but there are still some smaller farms with the peaceful pastoral scenes depicted in the travel folders.

Weekly Grain Report

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Soybean farmers continue to face an unending decline in the price of their product without any real hope of relief in the foreseeable future.

Palm oil production continues to climb sharply, providing a cheaper source of oil than the soybean. Livestock production is not increasing fast enough around the world to consume all the meal available.

Shipments of fishmeal and cottonseed meal are down, but the real problem is a lack of demand from overseas' customers for the soybean itself. More than half of the crop must be exported to sustain a high price.

Wheat prices have been strengthened a little by the dry weather and late planting, but really haven't shown any response to a very good export demand.

The big problem of a huge grain harvest that overwhelmed the market's ability to absorb is still with us. It was made a little worse last week by the announcement that Canada expects to have a very large corn crop, reducing their imports from the U.S.

One bright spot in the feed grain picture is the increased production of dairy products last month. This indicates that some livestock producers are responding to lower feed costs by increasing the amount of grain fed.

There are some indications of increased interest in livestock feeding from cattle and hog producers. Feedlots in Texas are reported nearing 80% of capacity in some areas but the grain market won't respond until a new cattle on feed report is issued.

Spotlight on Agriculture

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

If you have always wanted to own a piece of a still, you may get a chance to do so legally, but it won't do much for your liquor supply.

The Gasohol Committee is eager to build a plant to make industrial grain alcohol that could be blended with gasoline to make Gasohol or could be used by industries that now use an alcohol made from petroleum.

Such a plant could provide a market for a lot of low quality weather damaged grain and potatoes as well as provide some of the fuel we use in the state.

The plant would also make plenty of cattle feed and has possibilitites for a lot more products.

The hitch is finding someone with $25 million to invest in a plant that will take at least 3 years to build.

Instead of owning a piece of the rock, you can own a piece of the job . . . a big red jug of course.

That last frankfurter you ate might really be a fowlfurter. I am not kidding one bit — it seems that soybean substitute is not as good a beef and pork extender as poultry meat is.

Turkey, a fairly lean and dry meat allows a bit more beef fat in the wiener mix. The franks also become all-meat products with the poultry added.

I don't mind folks eating soybeans, but those who grow beans in Nebraska ought to feed them to animals and then feed the animals to people.

☆ ☆ ☆

Some people have been attacking the formation of a beef promotion organization at the national level for some fairly dumb reasons. One of the dumbest came from an analyst for a major farm group who suggested people were eating too much meat anyway.

Sometimes the leadership of our larger general farm groups have opposed checkoff programs because they themselves couldn't manage to get control of the checkoff funds.

It is quite true that not every promotion effort funded by farmers has been a winner.

Sometimes it was because the farmers expected to see cattle prices double overnight or soybeans hit $30 a bushel just because they sent in their dime a head or half cent a bushel.

Market development is a long-term process that takes a good deal of money, top-notch, dedicated people and a high quality product. Another important factor is an adequate, dependable supply of the product.

It also takes multi-media advertising that is well done and is reinforced with point of sale material, recipies and demonstrations.

Our farmers need to sell good nutrition to Americans as well as Japanese customers. The long term advantages are particularly apparent in Japan, where the new generation is larger, heavier and stronger than their parents who had poor diets.

If American kids keep drinking soft drinks instead of milk and eating the empty calories of snack foods and idiot cereals, farmers will lose their best market: the 210 million people who live right here in the U.S.

☆ ☆ ☆

Farmers attending the Lower Platte South annual soil conservation banquet took notice of the speaker when he said "you don't really own your land."

That really brought them to sitting up straight, but the alarm was needless. Will Irwin, former under secretary of agriculture for rural development, was just reminding farmers that the land would be passed on to the next generation.

There are some farmers who will be wondering more and more who really does own their land as the future shock of federal regulations hit them.

Already state law prevents you from growing the weeds of your choice. The law actually permits the state director of agriculture to throw you in jail and destroy your crops if you don't rid your farm of the weeds of his choice.

We already are told if we allow our manure to leak into a stream we are subject to fines.

Most farmers wouldn't quarrel with the intent of those laws, but would object to the costs imposed on farmers.

We just may be looking at the tip of the governmental iceberg. There are efforts being aimed at controling the water carrying sediment as it runs off farms.

The Soil Conservation Service has been saying for years that this is our major pollutant. Now the environmentalists have made the same, but belated, discovery.

They don't want to offer any funds to farmers to build terraces and farm ponds. They just want to issue an order that any rain must stay on the land that it falls on, or the land owner will be fined. That ought to be interesting to enforce.

No Siesta, Huskers To Fiesta

The Nebraska football team will get a two week rest, but then the Huskers will be back in practice after reconsidering a Fiesta Bowl bid Sunday and voting "unanimously" to play the winner of the Western Athletic Conference on Dec. 26 in Tempe, Ariz.

The acceptance of the bowl bid will not become official until approved by the University of Nebraska Board of Regents.

"We were all disappointed in yesterday's game," Husker coach Tom Osborne said. "We wanted a chance to end it right. It may not work out, but at least we'll have that chance."

Osborne indicated that he was pleased with the outcome of the team vote. "We're also happy that the Fiesta Bowl held open their offer after we voted not to go before the Huskers played Oklahoma."

Nebraska will meet either No. 8 Arizona State, now 10-0, or Arizona, 11th ranked and 9-1. The WAC champion will be decided this Saturday.

Uncharacteristic Game

"We played an uncharacteristic game with all our turnovers," Osborne said, "and we were all tired and a bit beat. The team's first response on the plane was a bit negative, but now they have a better perspective."

"The coaches wanted us to go home and sleep on it," co-captain Terry Luck said. "There were about a couple hundred fans out at the airport last night and I think their enthusiasm got to the players.

"We decided we owed it to ourselves, the school and the fans to accept the bid," Luck continued. "We knew we didn't play up to potential and didn't want to go out on a bad note.

"It's going to be a good trip," Luck said. "We're real positive about it. We voted unanimously and thats how we feel."

Prior to the Oklahoma game, Nebraska rejected a Fiesta Bowl bid to concentrate on the Sooners and the Orange Bowl.

Nebraska defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin said right after the Oklahoma game the players probably still would have voted to stay home.

Competitive Attitude

But Kiffin said Sunday, "When they woke up this morning, the competitors that they are, they did not want to finish the season on a loss.

"Maybe it is a bigger bowl than they thought at first," Kiffin said, noting that no team playing in the Fiesta Bowl could have more than one loss.

"Most of us had the same sick feeling in our stomachs," fullback Tony Davis said. "We wanted to end it better. Any time this team plays, we're going to play our best."

It will be Nebraska's seventh consecutive bowl appearance and the Huskers can become the first team in history to win seven straight post-season games. They currently are tied with Georgia Tech with six straight, beginning with the 1969 Sun Bowl and continuing with three Orange Bowl victories and one each in the Cotton and Sugar Bowls.

John Reid, executive director of the 5-year-old Fiesta Bowl, said Osborne telephoned him following the team meeting.

"We are on cloud nine," Reid said. "This is a major breakthrough for us. It's the first time we're assured of the game between two teams which seem likely to be in the Top 10."

Bob Devaney, Nebraska athletic director and former Husker coach, said he was happy with the outcome of the Fiesta Bowl vote "for the players' sake—if they play well. I'd like to see the bowl record, but we realize we'll have a good opponent."

Arizona State Coach Frank Kush said "I think it is going to be a great stimulant for the Fiesta Bowl as well as for the Western Athletic Conference. I think it is the recognition the bowl if looking for.

"I think it will mean a great deal for the WAC, and it is sure to help out recruiting and give national attention and a pretty good indication of the type of WAC play from either ASU or Arizona."

Kush declined to predict which team will be host, his or Arizona.

"About this time next week I will be glad to tell you," he said. "I think it is a great opportunity for either of the two schools."

Bowl Tickets

According to NCAA rules, one-sixth of the available tickets will be offered to Nebraska. The Fiesta Bowl seats 50,000, so 8,200 tickets will be sent to Nebraska ticket manager Jim Pittenger.

Pittenger said his office received approximately 3,000 bowl ticket requests before Nebraska was selected by the Fiesta Bowl. Pittenger said those who had already ordered need not reorder.

Prices of the tickets are $8 and $6 and orders will be filled according to the priorities used in the past.

Nebraska students and faculty, major contributing organizations, season ticket holders of record, former N Men and finally travel agencies, public and private, which normally provide service for fans to Cornhusker games is the set priority.

"Those who order tickets should not mistake the return of their cashed check as a promise that their tickets will be forthcoming," Pittenger said. All checks received with orders are deposited even though eventual inability to fill the order will require a refund.

Tarkenton Snaps Unitas' Mark

The Lincoln Star

By United Press International

It was a day to remember for Fran Tarkenton of the Minnesota Vikings, but for another of the National Football League's outstanding quarterbacks —Bob Griese of the Miami Dolphins — Sunday may go down in his personal ledger as a day of infamy.

Tarkenton shattered John Unitas' NFL passing record for completions when he connected on 24 for 201 yards and a touchdown while leading the unbeaten Vikings to a 28-13 triumph over the winless San Diego Chargers. That triumph assured Minnesota of at least a tie for its seventh division title in the last eight years.

Tarkenton, a 15-year veteran, hiked his lifetime completion total to 2,840 yards, 10 more than Unitas compiled. He threw a 16-yard touchdown pass to Ed Marinaro and set up two of Chuck Foreman's three touchdown runs with his passing. Tarkenton is now just five TD passes shy of Unitas' all-time TD mark of 290.

The victory raised the Vikings' record to 10-0, and coupled with Kansas City's 24-21 overtime victory over Detroit, gave Minnesota a four-game lead over the Lions in the NFC Central Division with four games to play. San Diego's record fell to 0-10.

While things were jubilant in the Vikings' dressing room after the game, there was nothing but somberness in the lockerroom of the Dolphins.

Not only were the Dolphins upset 33-17 by the Baltimore Colts, but there was fear that Miami may have lost Griese for the rest of the season because of an injured toe.

Griese suffered a torn tendon in his right big toe on the third play of the second half, and if surgery is required, he will be through for the year.

"I'll get checked tomorrow, we'll just have to wait and see," said Griese. "I was scrambling and then I tried to run and the toe just gave out. I tried to accelerate off the toe and it just happened. I never had any troubles with it before."

Don McCauley bulled for three touchdowns and all-purpose running back Lydell Mitchell added a 32-yard TD run to spark the Colts to their fifth consecutive triumph. The victory moved Baltimore to within one game of the division-leading Dolphins in the AFC East.

The Colts also lost their quarterback, Bert Jones, with bruised ribs during the second quarter, but the injury was not believed serious. Marty Domres took over for Jones and he guided the Colts to 24 second half points.

In other NFL games, Cleveland upset Cincinnati 35-23, Dallas whipped Philadelphia 27-17, Green Bay crushed the New York Giants 40-14, St. Louis blasted the New York Jets 37-6, Buffalo outlasted New England 45-31, Atlanta downed Denver 35-21, San Francisco defeated New Orleans 16-6, Los Angeles walloped Chicago 38-10 and Oakland edged Washington 26-23 in overtime.

Greg Pruitt scored two touchdowns to spark Cleveland to its first triumph of the season. Pruitt gained 120 yards rushing and scored on a two-yard run and a 13-yard pass from quarterback Mike Phipps, who completed 23 of 36 passes for 298 yards and two TD's. The Browns came from behind after Cincinnati quarterback Ken Anderson left the game with a bruised chest in the middle of the third quarter.

Preston Pearson ran for one touchdown and set up two more scores with screen passes to spark Dallas' victory.

John Hadl passed for 275 yards and two TD,s to pace Green Bay's victory over the Giants; Terry Metcalf ran for two TD's and Jim Hart passed for two more in sparking St. Louis' triumph over the Jets and O.J. Simpson ran for two TD's and caught two more scoring passes in helping the Bills defeat the Patriots.

Jan Stenerud's 26-yard field goal in sudden-death overtime gave Kansas City a victory over Detroit; rookie Steve Bartkowski, returning to action for the first time in nearly a month, passed for two TD's to lead Atlanta to victory over Denver and San Francisco, despite a Saints' record 25 pass completions by Archie Manning, beat New Orleans on Steve Spurrier's TD pass and Larry Schreiber's TD run.

George Blanda, who missed a 33-yard field goal with five seconds left in regulation time, redeemed himself with a 27-yard boot in overtime to give Oakland a victory over Washington. The loss dropped the Redskins two games behind St. Louis in the NFC East with only four to play.

Grand Island — Moe Iba is optimistic about Nebraska's basketball team.

"We're getting together now in practice," said Nebraska's assistant basketball coach. "They're giving the effort and playing more as a team."

The Huskers put more than six weeks of practice to work here Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Grand Island Senior High School gymnasium in the annual red-white intrasquad scrimmage.

It's the first time the Huskers have been allowed to hold games away from campus under a new Big Eight regulation.

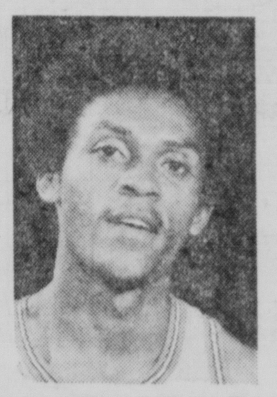

Nevertheless, the contest will be played under full collegiate rules — regulation time periods and other rules. The teams will also be divided equally so the game doesn't become a route.

"They've been handling the basketball much better now and that's encouraging," Iba said. "We split the squad down the middle to try to make the game more equal. Everybody will get to play.

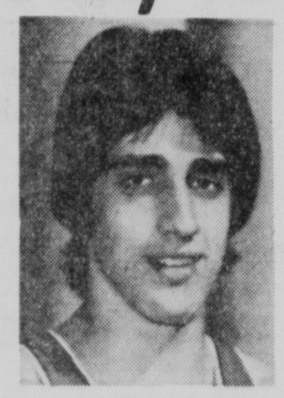

"We have 14 players and we put seven on each team," he said. "If the weather's good, we should fill the gym."

Head coach Joe Cipriano may turn the coaching chores to Iba and assistant coach Lonnie Porter.

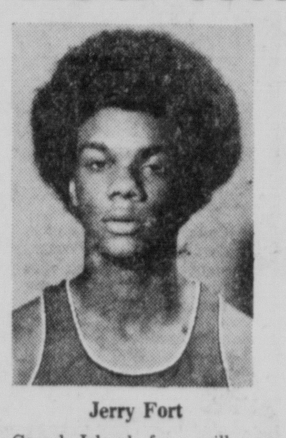

By experience alone, the red squad may rank as a slight favorite. Two of the three seniors, guard Steve Willis and center Larry Cox, are on the reds.

Jerry Fort

Other red "veterans" include juniors Rickey Harris and Phil Chambers and sophomore Terry Novak.

The white squad features senior guard Jerry Fort, who earned all-Big Eight laurels last season for his 20.2 scoring average.

Grand Island fans will see Fort open his final season as a Husker after leading the team in scoring the past three years. If, as expected, he is NU's top scorer this season, he will become the first Big Eight player to pace one team in scoring for four years.

Junior Bob Siegel, a 6-7 forward, will team with Fort on the white team for a potent offensive attack.

Tuesday Luncheon

A Rotary Club luncheon is set for Tuesday noon at the Cornhusker Hotel.

NU basketball coach Joe Cipriano and his players will attend. The public is invited.

Huskers Lost Week Ago

Norman, Okla — Among the many newspapermen from across the nation who covered the Oklahoma victory over Nebraska here Saturday, Skip Bayless of the Miami News-Herald had probably the most interesting summary of what happened.

He interviewed athletic director Bob Devaney outside the Husker dressing room and came up with this information:

"Standing outside the locker room tomb where the Nebraska football players were dying their thousandth death late Saturday afternoon, the Nebraska athletic director and former coach shook his head over the messy 35-10 victory the Cornhuskers had just handed their hosts.

"Listen, I could tell the kids got this feeling Oklahoma was destined to win the Big Eight last week when they were listening to the Oklahoma-Missouri game," Bayless quoted Devaney.

"We had beaten Iowa State, and Missouri got ahead 27-20. They were chanting 'beach, beach, beach!' Then the placekicker missed the point-after which would have clinched the Big Eight for us. I could see in their faces they had an idea this wasn't supposed to be."

Mike Jones of the Dallas Morning News wrote: "Figuratively, the Cornhuskers slipped on orange peels all afternoon long. Consequently, cactus may look good to Nebraska in December."

Sooners Not That Much Better

Bob Markus covered the game for the Chicago Tribune. Here's his first few paragraphs:

"It was not your classic football game. Oklahoma won it 35-10. The Sooners were better than Nebraska Saturday. But not that much better.

"Oklahoma turned five Nebraska mistakes into touchdowns. That's why the Sooners are headed for the Orange Bowl game against Michigan on New Year's night. That's why the Cornhuskers are headed home for Nebraska, their dreams of a perfect season and a possible national championship shattered.

"Oklahoma was good Saturday, especially on defense. But Oklahoma was lucky, too, and frankly admitted it. "It's like a dream," exclaimed Sooner coach Barry Switzer. "I can't believe what happened. All year we've kind of looked the way Nebraska looked in the second half."

Cotton Bowl Dilemma

Bob Galt of the Dallas Times-Herald discussed the Cotton Bowl situation:

"If only the Cotton Bowl had known. Nebraska was available. A bit battered, maybe, and all down in the mouth, but the Cornhuskers could have been the Cotton Bowl's guest team.

Comebacks Highlight College Shootouts

By United Press International

"This was the greatest comeback I ever had," said Woody Hayes, who thanks to another "Griffin," will be taking his Ohio State team to the Rose Bowl.

"I can't believe what happened in the second half. It's got to be the greatest win I've ever been associated with," echoed Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer, who will be going to the Orange Bowl with his Big Eight champion Sooners after knocking off second-ranked Nebraska, 35-10.

It was indeed a second half weekend, at least as far as winning conference championships and cementing bowl bids was concerned.

Top-ranked Ohio State, having fallen behind 14-7 to No. 5 Michigan, rallied to tie the score with 3:18 to play and then won it 21-14 after sophomore Ray Griffin, Heisman Trophy winner Archie's 19-year old brother, intercepted a pass by freshman Michigan quarterback Rick Leach in the closing minutes of play and ran it back to the Wolverine three yard line.

Workhorse fullback Pete Johnson, who earlier scored the tying TD from the one, then ran over the game-winner to give Ohio State a perfect 11-0 record an a fourth straight trip to Pasadena.

"Is this my greatest team?" said Hayes after the come-from-behind victory before 105,543 partisan Michigan fans at Ann Arbor. "The first three quarters, no. The last quarter. indubitably! This is the greatest comeback I ever had."

For Michigan (8-1-2), which will now face Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl, the loss was a threefold disappointment. First, head coach Bo Schembechler failed to win "the big one" and Big Ten championship for the fourth straight year. Secondly, the Wolverines (in vain) managed to hold Griffin, Archie that is, to 46 yards — the first time in 32 regular season games he's failed to surpass the 100-yard mark. And third, the loss was the first suffered at home by a Michigan team since Schembechler became head coach in 1969.

Ohio State, on the basis of having a better overall record, would've gone to the Rose Bowl in the event of a tie.

"Kicking the point was instrumental," said Schembechler in explaining why Hayes initially went for a tie. "They knew we had to gamble to win and knew we would be throwing with the wind in our face."

Turnovers Hurt NU

Oklahoma's victory over second-ranked Nebraska (10-1) was also a masterful late-minute job. Ahead by only 14-10 after three quarters, the Sooners (10-1) scored three times in the final period to send Nebraska to the Fiesta Bowl against the Western Athletic Conference Champion.

All told, Oklahoma converted five Nebraska turnovers into touchdowns, quarterback Steve Davis scoring two of them. Thus, the Sooners will be making their first bowl and TV appearance since being placed on NCAA probation two years ago.

"Whoee!" crowed Switzer after the victory. "I can't believe what happened in that second half. This victory was the season right there. We were awfully lucky."

Lamented Nebraska coach Tom Osborne, "The turnovers led to our downfall."

Kansas To Sun Bowl

Kansas gained a Sun Bowl berth with an overwhelming 42-24 victory over Missouri; Colorado, ignited by Billy Waddy's 100-yard return of the opening kickoff, turned back Kansas State, 33-7, and Oklahoma State, using touchdown runs of 1 and 20 yards by Terry Miller, edged Iowa State, 14-7.

The Jayhawks of coach Bud Moore exploded for 35 points in the second half and halfback Laverne Smith turned in sensational scoring runs of 67 and 56 yards in the wild third quarter. The two teams generated 405 yards, 304 by Kansas, total offense in the third quarter alone.

Smith, a junior from Wichita, Kan., netted 236 yards on 15 carries for the game.

Smith, with 2,096 yards, moved up to No. 3 on the Kansas rushing charts behind John Riggins and Gale Sayers and still has another season to play. And the Jayhawks' 556 yards rushing gave them a season school record of 3,488 rushing yards, 372 more than the 1950 team.

Kansas State, despite its eighth straight loss, did manage to break its touchdown drought. The Wildcats scored in the fourth quarter at Boulder, ending a streak of 25 straight quarters without a touchdown.

Elsewhere in key college games, California kept its Rose Bowl hopes alive by thrashing arch-rival Stanford, 45-15; Penn State squeeked into the Sugar Bowl by narrowly beating Sun Bowl-bound Pittsburgh, 7-6; Harvard wrapped up its first outright Ivy League title when Mike Lynch's 26-yard field goal with 33 seconds left provided a 10-7 decision over Yale.

"If Chuck Muncie isn't a Heisman Trophy winner then who is?" shouted California coach Mike White after his standout running back ran for three touchdowns, grabbed a seven-yard pass from Joe Roth for a fourth and then threw 46 yards to Wesley Walker for a fifth in the Golden Bears' romp over Stanford.

Muncie, wound up with 169 yards on the day, but Cal folks must wait 'til next week to find out if they'll be going to the Rose Bowl for the first time since 1959. UCLA, the Pacific 8 front-runner, still has to beat Southern California to win the Rose Bowl berth.

Penn State clinched its fifth straight Lambert Trophy

The Nittany Lions spoiled Pittsburgh's hopes of a second straight major upset when Panthers' placekicker Carson Long missed what proved to be the deciding extra point in the second period and later failed on three field goal attempts in the final five minutes. Steve Geise ran 28 yards and Chris Bahr converted for the winning Penn State points in the fourth quarter.

No Siesta, Huskers To Fiesta

The Nebraska football team will get a two week rest, but then the Huskers will be back in practice after reconsidering a Fiesta Bowl bid Sunday and voting "unanimously" to play the winner of the Western Athletic Conference on Dec. 26 in Tempe, Ariz.

The acceptance of the bowl bid will not become official until approved by the University of Nebraska Board of Regents.

"We were all disappointed in yesterday's game," Husker coach Tom Osborne said. "We wanted a chance to end it right. It may not work out, but at least we'll have that chance."

Osborne indicated that he was pleased with the outcome of the team vote. "We're also happy that the Fiesta Bowl held open their offer after we voted not to go before the Huskers played Oklahoma."

Nebraska will meet either No. 8 Arizona State, now 10-0, or Arizona, 11th ranked and 9-1. The WAC champion will be decided this Saturday.

Uncharacteristic Game

"We played an uncharacteristic game with all our turnovers," Osborne said, "and we were all tired and a bit beat. The team's first response on the plane was a bit negative, but now they have a better perspective."

"The coaches wanted us to go home and sleep on it," co-captain Terry Luck said. "There were about a couple hundred fans out at the airport last night and I think their enthusiasm got to the players.

"We decided we owed it to ourselves, the school and the fans to accept the bid," Luck continued. "We knew we didn't play up to potential and didn't want to go out on a bad note.

"It's going to be a good trip," Luck said. "We're real positive about it. We voted unanimously and thats how we feel."

Prior to the Oklahoma game, Nebraska rejected a Fiesta Bowl bid to concentrate on the Sooners and the Orange Bowl.

Nebraska defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin said right after the Oklahoma game the players probably still would have voted to stay home.

Competitive Attitude

But Kiffin said Sunday, "When they woke up this morning, the competitors that they are, they did not want to finish the season on a loss.

"Maybe it is a bigger bowl than they thought at first," Kiffin said, noting that no team playing in the Fiesta Bowl could have more than one loss.

"Most of us had the same sick feeling in our stomachs," fullback Tony Davis said. "We wanted to end it better. Any time this team plays, we're going to play our best."

It will be Nebraska's seventh consecutive bowl appearance and the Huskers can become the first team in history to win seven straight post-season games. They currently are tied with Georgia Tech with six straight, beginning with the 1969 Sun Bowl and continuing with three Orange Bowl victories and one each in the Cotton and Sugar Bowls.

John Reid, executive director of the 5-year-old Fiesta Bowl, said Osborne telephoned him following the team meeting.

"We are on cloud nine," Reid said. "This is a major breakthrough for us. It's the first time we're assured of the game between two teams which seem likely to be in the Top 10."

Bob Devaney, Nebraska athletic director and former Husker coach, said he was happy with the outcome of the Fiesta Bowl vote "for the players' sake—if they play well I'd like to see the bowl record, but we realize we'll have a good opponent."

Arizona State Coach Frank Kush said "I think it is going to be a great stimulant for the Fiesta Bowl as well as for the Western Athletic Conference. I think it is the recognition the bowl if looking for.

"I think it will mean a great deal for the WAC, and it is sure to help out recruiting and give national attention and a pretty good indication of the type of WAC play from either ASU or Arizona."

Kush declined to predict which team will be host, his or Arizona.

"About this time next week I will be glad to tell you," he said. "I think it is a great opportunity for either of the two schools."

Bowl Tickets

According to NCAA rules, one-sixth of the available tickets will be offered to Nebraska. The Fiesta Bowl seats 50,000, so 8,200 tickets will be sent to Nebraska ticket manager Jim Pittenger.

Pittenger said his office received approximately 3,000 bowl ticket requests before Nebraska was selected by the Fiesta Bowl. Pittenger said those who had already ordered need not reorder.

Prices of the tickets are $8 and $6 and orders will be filled according to the priorities used in the past.

Nebraska students and faculty, major contributing organizations, season ticket holders of record, former N Men and finally travel agencies, public and private, which normally provide service for fans to Cornhusker games is the set priority.

"Those who order tickets should not mistake the return of their cashed check as a promise that their tickets will be forthcoming," Pittenger said. All checks received with orders are deposited even though eventual inability to fill the order will require a refund.

Tarkenton Snaps Unitas' Mark

It was a day to remember for Fran Tarkenton of the Minnesota Vikings, but for another of the National Football League's outstanding quarterbacks —Bob Griese of the Miami Dolphins — Sunday may go down in his personal ledger as a day of infamy.

Tarkenton shattered John Unitas' NFL passing record for completions when he connected on 24 for 201 yards and a touchdown while leading the unbeaten Vikings to a 28-13 triumph over the winless San Diego Chargers. That triumph assured Minnesota of at least a tie for its seventh division title in the last eight years.

Tarkenton, a 15-year veteran, hiked his lifetime completion total to 2,840 yards, 10 more than Unitas compiled. He threw a 16-yard touchdown pass to Ed Marinaro and set up two of Chuck Foreman's three touchdown runs with his passing. Tarkenton is now just five TD passes shy of Unitas' all-time TD mark of 290.

The victory raised the Vikings' record to 10-0, and coupled with Kansas City's 24-21 overtime victory over Detroit, gave Minnesota a four-game lead over the Lions in the NFC Central Division with four games to play. San Diego's record fell to 0-10.

While things were jubilant in the Vikings' dressing room after the game, there was nothing but somberness in the lockerroom of the Dolphins.

Not only were the Dolphins upset 33-17 by the Baltimore Colts, but there was fear that Miami may have lost Griese for the rest of the season because of an injured toe.

Griese suffered a torn tendon in his right big toe on the third play of the second half, and if surgery is required, he will be through for the year.

"I'll get checked tomorrow, we'll just have to wait and see," said Griese. "I was scrambling and then I tried to run and the toe just gave out. I tried to accelerate off the toe and it just happened. I never had any troubles with it before."

Don McCauley bulled for three touchdowns and all-purpose running back Lydell Mitchell added a 32-yard TD run to spark the Colts to their fifth consecutive triumph. The victory moved Baltimore to within one game of the division-leading Dolphins in the AFC East.

The Colts also lost their quarterback, Bert Jones, with bruised ribs during the second quarter, but the injury was not believed serious. Marty Domres took over for Jones and he guided the Colts to 24 second half points.

In other NFL games, Cleveland upset Cincinnati 35-23, Dallas whipped Philadelphia 27-17, Green Bay crushed the New York Giants 40-14, St. Louis blasted the New York Jets 37-6, Buffalo outlasted New England 45-31, Atlanta downed Denver 35-21, San Francisco defeated New Orleans 16-6, Los Angeles walloped Chicago 38-10 and Oakland edged Washington 26-23 in overtime.

Greg Pruitt scored two touchdowns to spark Cleveland to its first triumph of the season. Pruitt gained 120 yards rushing and scored on a two-yard run and a 13-yard pass from quarterback Mike Phipps, who completed 23 of 36 passes for 298 yards and two TD's. The Browns came from behind after Cincinnati quarterback Ken Anderson left the game with a bruised chest in the middle of the third quarter.

Preston Pearson ran for one touchdown and set up two more scores with screen passes to spark Dallas' victory.

John Hadl passed for 275 yards and two TD.s to pace Green Bay's victory over the Giants; Terry Metcalf ran for two TD's and Jim Hart passed for two more in sparking St. Louis' triumph over the Jets and O.J. George Blanda, who missed a 33-yard field goal with five seconds left in regulation time, redeemed himself with a 27-yard boot in overtime to give Oakland a victory over Washington. The loss dropped the Redskins two games behind St. Louis in the NFC East with only four to play.

Turnovers Hurt NU

Oklahoma's victory over second-ranked Nebraska (10-1) was also a masterful late-minute job. Ahead by only 14-10 after three quarters, the Sooners (10-1) scored three times in the final period to send Nebraska to the Fiesta Bowl against the Western Athletic Conference Champion.

All told, Oklahoma converted five Nebraska turnovers into touchdowns, quarterback Steve Davis scoring two of them. Thus, the Sooners will be making their first bowl and TV appearance since being placed on NCAA probation two years ago.

"Whoee!" crowed Switzer after the victory. "I can't believe what happened in that second half. This victory was the season right there. We were awfully lucky."

Lamented Nebraska coach Tom Osborne, "The turnovers led to our downfall."

Kansas To Sun Bowl

Kansas gained a Sun Bowl berth with an overwhelming 42-24 victory over Missouri; Colorado, ignited by Billy Waddy's 100-yard return of the opening kickoff, turned back Kansas State, 33-7, and Oklahoma State, using touchdown runs of 1 and 20 yards by Terry Miller, edged Iowa State, 14-7.

The Jayhawks of coach Bud Moore exploded for 35 points in the second half and halfback Laverne Smith turned in sensational scoring runs of 67 and 56 yards in the wild third quarter. The two teams generated 405 yards, 304 by Kansas, total offense in the third quarter alone.

Smith, a junior from Wichita, Kan., netted 236 yards on 15 carries for the game.

Smith, with 2,096 yards, moved up to No. 3 on the Kansas rushing charts behind John Riggins and Gale Sayers and still has another season to play. And the Jayhawks' 556 yards rushing gave them a season school record of 3,488 rushing yards, 372 more than the 1950 team.

Kansas State, despite its eighth straight loss, did manage to break its touchdown drought. The Wildcats scored in the fourth quarter at Boulder, ending a streak of 25 straight quarters without a touchdown.

Elsewhere in key college games, California kept its Rose Bowl hopes alive by thrashing arch-rival Stanford, 45-15; Penn State squeeked into the Sugar Bowl by narrowly beating Sun Bowl-bound Pittsburgh, 7-6; Harvard wrapped up its first outright Ivy League title when Mike Lynch's 26-yard field goal with 33 seconds left provided a 10-7 decision over Yale.

"If Chuck Muncie isn't a Heisman Trophy winner then who is?" shouted California coach Mike White after his standout running back ran for three touchdowns, grabbed a seven-yard pass from Joe Roth for a fourth and then threw 46 yards to Wesley Walker for a fifth in the Golden Bears' romp over Stanford.

Muncie, wound up with 169 yards on the day, but Cal folks must wait 'til next week to find out if they'll be going to the Rose Bowl for the first time since 1959. UCLA, the Pacific 8 front-runner, still has to beat Southern California to win the Rose Bowl berth.

Penn State clinched its fifth straight Lambert Trophy.

The Nittany Lions spoiled Pittsburgh's hopes of a second straight major upset when Panthers' placekicker Carson Long missed what proved to be the deciding extra point in the second period and later failed on three field goal attempts in the final five minutes. Steve Geise ran 28 yards and Chris Bahr converted for the winning Penn State points in the fourth quarter.

White Paces Celts Over Cavs

From News Wires

Jo Jo White paced the Boston Celtics to a 105-90 National Basketball Association victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

In other NBA action, Atlanta defeated Philadelphia 115-111, the Los Angeles Lakers rolled to a 110-99 win over the Houston Rockets and Seattle downed the Milwaukee Bucks 112-104.

White hit 13 of 26 field goal attempts for 27 points to lead all scorers. Charlie Scott added 16 points for the Celts while Dick Snyder topped Cleveland with 21 points.

The Cavaliers surged to an 81-76 deficit in the final period, but Boston went to take a 87-76 lead and breezed on to the win.

Tom Henderson tossed in a desperation 22-footer with three seconds left to give Atlanta the win.

Henderson scored 13 of the Hawks last 15 points to hold a faltering team together to salvage the win.

The 76ers' McGinnis and Atlanta's John Drew shared game high honors with 33 points each. Henderson has 21 for the Hawks.

Guard Gail Goodrich scored 28 points and handed off 11 assists, both season highs, as the Lakers rolled over the Rockets.

The victory was the Lakers' ninth win without a loss at home and ran their season record to 12-6. The win put them in a virtual first-place tie with Golden State in the Pacific Division.

Los Angeles exploded for 38 points in the first period, hitting 17 of 23 shots, to take an 18-point lead.

Center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar netted 22 points and guard Lucius Allen added 21 to support Goodrich. Mike Newlin led Houston with 26 points followed by forward Rudy Tomjanovich with 22.

Tommy Burleson netted a game high 28 points to pace the Supersonics. Seattle had the lead at the half, 58-47, but by the start of the fourth quarter, the Bucks had closed to within 101-100.

The Sonics then outscored the Bucks 11-4 down the stretch to put it out of reach.

The victory evened Seattle's mark at 8-8 and the Sonics now trail Golden State by three games in the Pacific Division.

In the ABA, the Kentucky Colonels downed the Spirits of St. Louis 93-85 and the New York Nets defeated the Utah Stars, 113-106.

Artis Gilmore scored 29 points and pumped in a basket after the Spirits had a 76-76 tie to push the Colonels to the win.

The Colonels led by as many as 12 points in the first half but the Spirits quickly tied the game by scoring the first 10 points in the third quarter.

The Spirits played without their leading scorer, Marvin Barnes, who is involved in a civil assault trial.

Julius Erving scored 33 points and Tim Bassett grabbed 17 rebounds to lead the Nets over the Stars.

Erving, who had 17 points in the first half, scored 12 points in the third period as the Nets went from a seven-point halftime lead to take an 86-87 lead after three quarters.

Kim Hughes scored 16 points for the Nets, while Brian Taylor added 15. Ron Boone led the Stars with 24 points.

Raiders 'Displace' Willie W.

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the second time in seven years, the Oakland Raiders football team has brought grief to National Broadcasting Co. switchboard operators.

The first controversy—which went down in history as the "Heidi" game—involved the network cutting away to the children's program from an Oakland-New York Jets game that was decided in the final seconds.

So on Sunday night, when the Oakland-Washington Redskins game went into sudden death overtime, NBC made certain the game was carried to its conclusion.

The result: some 1,000 phone calls from the parents of children frustrated because a rerun of the Walt Disney movie "Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory" scheduled to start at 7 p.m. EST was picked up with its first 40 minutes cut out.

"We got around 1,000 calls in favor of Willy Wonka versus the Raiders and the Redkins," said NBC spokesman Jack Van Buskirk.

He said the callers generally complained not because the two-hour movie started late, but over the fact it was picked up in progress.

"A decision was made to pick up the film in progress because it was felt it would be too late for the kids to go to 9:45 p.m.," the spokesman said.

The network's present policy on football games that run late stems from the Nov. 17, 1968 Oakland-Jets game when it cut away to "Heidi" with the contest almost complete and the Jets leading by three points.

While "Heidi" cavorted on the screen, the Raiders scored two touchdowns in the last nine seconds for a 43-32 victory.

"It's been company policy since that time to carry the games to their conclusion," Van Buskirk said.

He said there were "a lot more" complaining calls from football fans in the "Heidi" game than were received from Willy Wonka fans.

Fuel Shortage Worries Baker

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Buddy Baker didn't take a victory lap after winning Sunday's Los Angeles Times 500, because, "I didn't want to have to walk back to the victory circle from the backstretch."

Baker was referring to a critical fuel situation caused by a race that ran the distance with only one slowed-down caution. Several yellow flags are normal during the course of a 500-mile race.

"My fuel pressure gauge was giving me funny readings the last few laps and I didn't want to take any chances," Baker said. "So I backed off a little and drafted behind other cars to save fuel.

The victory was Baker's second consecutive on the NASCAR Grand National stock car circuit, after a triumph two weeks ago in the Dixie 500.

Yankees Trade Hurler Dobson

New York (AP)—The New York Yankees have traded veteran pitcher Pat Dobson to the Cleveland Indians for outfielder Oscar Gamble in a straight player deal, it was announced today.

Dobson, a right-hander who will be 34 years old in February, won 11 and lost 14 and had a 4.07 earned run average last season. He frequently voiced displeasure at not being able to pitch every fourth day.

Oilers Eyeing Steelers

Houston (AP) — The newly-rich Houston Oilers, only two years ago residents of the National Football League poorhouse, meet defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh in the Astrodome Monday night with all the trappings of a national television showdown.

It's almost a script writer's dream: The rags-to-riches Oilers with their surprising 7-2 record, battling the playoff wealthy Steelers, 8-1, for supremacy in the air-tight American Conference Central Division.

This extravaganza could even have a gut-wrenching ending to compare with the movie epic "Dr. Zhivago" which is being shown on another network. Two weeks ago it took a Terry Bradshaw touchdown pass with 38 seconds left in the game to give the Steelers a 24-17 victory over the Oilers.

While the major focal point will be Houston's efforts to pull even with the Steelers in a frantic run for the playoffs, there also will be some interesting sub-plots.

They include: Steeler punter Bobby Walden's efforts to punt away from Billy "White Shoes" Johnson, the AFC's leading punt returner; Terry Bradshaw's efforts to find secondary receivers in Houston's zone defense, and similar attempts by Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini.

Bradshaw scrambled, ran and passed to one of his best games in the previous Oiler meeting. Coach Bum Phillips said the Oiler defense will have to stay with receivers in their zones.

"A young quarterback scrambles to run. Bradshaw scrambles to pass," Oiler defensive coordinator Ed Biles said.

Luce Goals Aid Sabres' Victory

From News Wires

Don Luce scored twice and assisted on goals by linemates Danny Gare and Craig Ramsay Sunday night in the Buffalo Sabres' 6-2 National Hockey League victory over the Kansas City Scouts.

In other NHL action, the Boston Bruins salvaged a 3-3 tie with the Toronto Maple Leafs, the Detroit Red Wings downed the Los Angeles Kings 4-1, and the New York Rangers defeated the California Seals 3-2.

Luce scored his first goal after only 52 seconds while his second goal came in the second period with the Sabres playing a man short. It was the first shorthanded goal of the season for the veteran center, who had eight last season.

Randy Rota and Craig Patrick scored the only goals for Kansas City. Buffalo has won seven of its last eight games and has a home ice record of 12-1-1.

Andre Savard scored the tying goal for the Boston Bruins less than a minute after Toronto scored the go-ahead goal.

It was Boston's seventh game without a loss and the tie left the Bruins in a second place tie with the Leafs in the NHL's Adams Division. The Leafs have had three ties in as many games.

Walt McKechnie scored two goals to help the Red Wings gain their first victory over the Kings in nearly two years.

J.P. LeBlanc sealed the first win over Los Angeles since Jan. 12, 1974 with his second NHL goal with 3:55 remaining in the game. He was just purchased from Denver of the WHA.

Rookie center Dennis Polanich pestered former Detroit center Marcel Dionne, making his first appearance in his old arena, so that he was ineffective and did not have a shot on goal all night.

Wayne Dillon's two second-period goals broke a scoreless tie and carried the Rangers to a 3-2 victory over the Seals.

Dillon set up Rick Middleton's 11th goal of the season at 15:17 of the second period as the Rangers took a 3-0 lead.

White Paces Celts Over Cavs

From News Wires

Jo Jo White paced the Boston Celtics to a 105-90 National Basketball Association victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

In other NBA action, Atlanta defeated Philadelphia 115-111, the Los Angeles Lakers rolled to a 110-99 win over the Houston Rockets and Seattle downed the Milwaukee Bucks 112-104.

White hit 13 of 26 field goal attempts for 27 points to lead all scorers. Charlie Scott added 16 points for the Celts while Dick Snyder topped Cleveland with 21 points.

The Cavaliers surged to an 81-76 deficit in the final period, but Boston went to take a 87-76 lead and breezed on to the win.

Henderson scored 13 of the Hawks last 15 points to hold a faltering team together to salvage the win.

The 76ers' McGinnis and Atlanta's John Drew shared game high honors with 33 points each. Henderson has 21 for the Hawks.

Guard Gail Goodrich scored 28 points and handed off 11 assists, both season highs, as the Lakers rolled over the Rockets.

The victory was the Lakers' ninth win without a loss at home and ran their season record to 12-6. The win put them in a virtual first-place tie with Golden State in the Pacific Division.

Los Angeles exploded for 38 points in the first period, hitting 17 of 23 shots, to take an 18-point lead.

Center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar netted 22 points and guard Lucius Allen added 21 to support Goodrich. Mike Newlin led Houston with 26 points followed by forward Rudy Tomjanovich with 22.

Tommy Burleson netted a game high 28 points to pace the Supersonics. Seattle had the lead at the half, 58-47, but by the start of the fourth quarter, the Bucks had closed to within 101-100.

The Sonics then outscored the Bucks 11-4 down the stretch to put it out of reach.

The victory evened Seattle's mark at 8-8 and the Sonics now trail Golden State by three games in the Pacific Division.

In the ABA, the Kentucky Colonels downed the Spirits of St. Louis 93-85 and the New York Nets defeated the Utah Stars, 113-106.

Artis Gilmore scored 29 points and pumped in a basket after the Spirits had a 76-76 tie to push the Colonels to the win.

The Colonels led by as many as 12 points in the first half but the Spirits quickly tied the game by scoring the first 10 points in the third quarter.

The Spirits played without their leading scorer, Marvin Barnes, who is involved in a civil assault trial.

Julius Erving scored 33 points and Tim Bassett grabbed 17 rebounds to lead the Nets over the Stars.

Erving, who had 17 points in the first half, scored 12 points in the third period as the Nets went from a seven-point halftime lead to take an 86-87 lead after three quarters.

Kim Hughes scored 16 points for the Nets, while Brian Taylor added 15. Ron Boone led the Stars with 24 points.

Raiders 'Displace' Willie W.

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the second time in seven years, the Oakland Raiders football team has brought grief to National Broadcasting Co. switchboard operators.

The first controversy—which went down in history as the "Heidi" game—involved the network cutting away to the children's program from an Oakland-New York Jets game that was decided in the final seconds.

So on Sunday night, when the Oakland-Washington Redskins game went into sudden death overtime, NBC made certain the game was carried to its conclusion.

The result: some 1,000 phone calls from the parents of children frustrated because a rerun of the Walt Disney movie "Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory" scheduled to start at 7 p.m. EST was picked up with its first 40 minutes cut out.

"We got around 1,000 calls in favor of Willy Wonka versus the Raiders and the Redkins," said NBC spokesman Jack Van Buskirk.

He said the callers generally complained not because the two-hour movie started late, but over the fact it was picked up in progress.

"A decision was made to pick up the film in progress because it was felt it would be too late for the kids to go to 9:45 p.m.," the spokesman said.

The network's present policy on football games that run late stems from the Nov. 17, 1968 Oakland-Jets game when it cut away to "Heidi" with the contest almost complete and the Jets leading by three points.

While "Heidi" cavorted on the screen, the Raiders scored two touchdowns in the last nine seconds for a 43-32 victory.

"It's been company policy since that time to carry the games to their conclusion," Van Buskirk said.

He said there were "a lot more" complaining calls from football fans in the "Heidi" game than were received from Willy Wonka fans.

Fuel Shortage Worries Baker

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Buddy Baker didn't take a victory lap after winning Sunday's Los Angeles Times 500, because, "I didn't want to have to walk back to the victory circle from the backstretch."

Baker was referring to a critical fuel situation caused by a race that ran the distance with only one slowed-down caution. Several yellow flags are normal during the course of a 500-mile race.

"My fuel pressure gauge was giving me funny readings the last few laps and I didn't want to take any chances," Baker said. "So I backed off a little and drafted behind other cars to save fuel.

The victory was Baker's second consecutive on the NASCAR Grand National stock car circuit, after a triumph two weeks ago in the Dixie 500.

Yankees Trade Hurler Dobson

New York (AP)—The New York Yankees have traded veteran pitcher Pat Dobson to the Cleveland Indians for outfielder Oscar Gamble in a straight player deal, it was announced today.

Dobson, a right-hander who will be 34 years old in February, won 11 and lost 14 and had a 4.07 earned run average last season. He frequently voiced displeasure at not being able to pitch every fourth day.

Oilers Eyeing Steelers

Houston (AP) — The newly-rich Houston Oilers, only two years ago residents of the National Football League poorhouse, meet defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh in the Astrodome Monday night with all the trappings of a national television showdown.

It's almost a script writer's dream: The rags-to-riches Oilers with their surprising 7-2 record, battling the playoff wealthy Steelers, 8-1, for supremacy in the air-tight American Conference Central Division.

This extravaganza could even have a gut-wrenching ending to compare with the movie epic "Dr. Zhivago" which is being shown on another network. Two weeks ago it took a Terry Bradshaw touchdown pass with 38 seconds left in the game to give the Steelers a 24-17 victory over the Oilers.

While the major focal point will be Houston's efforts to pull even with the Steelers in a frantic run for the playoffs, there also will be some interesting sub-plots.

They include: Steeler punter Bobby Walden's efforts to punt away from Billy "White Shoes" Johnson, the AFC's leading punt returner; Terry Bradshaw's efforts to find secondary receivers in Houston's zone defense, and similar attempts by Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini.

Bradshaw scrambled, ran and passed to one of his best games in the previous Oiler meeting. Coach Bum Phillips said the Oiler defense will have to stay with receivers in their zones.

"A young quarterback scrambles to run. Bradshaw scrambles to pass," Oiler defensive coordinator Ed Biles said.

Luce Goals Aid Sabres' Victory

From News Wires

Don Luce scored twice and assisted on goals by linemates Danny Gare and Craig Ramsay Sunday night in the Buffalo Sabres' 6-2 National Hockey League victory over the Kansas City Scouts.

In other NHL action, the Boston Bruins salvaged a 3-3 tie with the Toronto Maple Leafs, the Detroit Red Wings downed the Los Angeles Kings 4-1, and the New York Rangers defeated the California Seals 3-2.

Luce scored his first goal after only 52 seconds while his second goal came in the second period with the Sabres playing a man short. It was the first shorthanded goal of the season for the veteran center, who had eight last season.

Randy Rota and Craig Patrick scored the only goals for Kansas City. Buffalo has won seven of its last eight games and has a home ice record of 12-1-1.

Andre Savard scored the tying goal for the Boston Bruins less than a minute after Toronto scored the go-ahead goal.

It was Boston's seventh game without a loss and the tie left the Bruins in a second place tie with the Leafs in the NHL's Adams Division. The Leafs have had three ties in as many games.

Walt McKechnie scored two goals to help the Red Wings gain their first victory over the Kings in nearly two years.

J.P. LeBlanc sealed the first win over Los Angeles since Jan. 12, 1974 with his second NHL goal with 3:55 remaining in the game. He was just purchased from Denver of the WHA.

Rookie center Dennis Polanich pestered former Detroit center Marcel Dionne, making his first appearance in his old arena, so that he was ineffective and did not have a shot on goal all night.

Wayne Dillon's two second-period goals broke a scoreless tie and carried the Rangers to a 3-2 victory over the Seals.

Dillon set up Rick Middleton's 11th goal of the season at 15:17 of the second period as the Rangers took a 3-0 lead.

Grey Cup To Edmonton

CALGARY, ALTA. (UPI) — Dave Cutler kicked a 52-yard field goal on the final play of the third quarter Sunday to give the Edmonton Eskimos a 9-8 victory over the Montreal Alouettes in the Canadian Football League's Grey Cup championship.

The Alouettes, the defending champions, had an opportunity to go ahead with 45 seconds remaining in the game when Don Sweet attempted a field goal from 19 yards out, but the ball failed wide and went for a single point.

Edmonton then ran out the clock on three plays for their first Grey Cup victory since 1956.

Since then, the Eskimos have made four Grey cup appearances, including each of the last three years.

Montreal took a 6-0 lead in the opening quarter on two Sweet field goals, one from 35 yards out at 5:50 and unother from 47 yards six minutes later.

At that stage, the 47-yard kick was a Grey Cup record, better than the 46-yard kick of Gerry Organ of the Ottawa Roughriders in 1973.

Cutler kicked his first of three field goals at 4:26 of the second quarter. Later, Sweet gave Montreal a 7-3 lead when his 32-yard field goal attempt was wide, but went for a 29-yard single.

WAC Showdown Will Decide Husker Foe

Eighth-ranked Arizona State was scheduled to take last week off all along. And as it turned out, 11th-ranked Arizona got a breather too as it looked ahead to its Nov. 29th showdown with ASU for the Western Athletic Conference championship.

Arizona, which didn't even suit up its top two rushers Dave Randolph and Melvin Baker, used its first-string for only a part of the first half and had 14 different players rush with the ball en route to a 38-14 win over Utah. The loss gave Utah its second straight 1-10 season.

The win gave Arizona a 9-1 record overall and 5-1 in the WAC as it looks towards the game with ASU, which is 10-0 and 6-0. The winner of the game will earn the WAC's host spot in the Fiesta Bowl.

"It was hard for us to get up for the game," said Arizona coach Jim Young, following his team's 567-yard total offense effort. "But we played well and it gave us a chance to see a lot of new faces."

Now, Young knows his team will have a full chore ahead of it.

"Arizona is a tough team or it wouldn't be 10-0," said Young, "We are going to have to stay up to beat ASU. We've played the whole season for the last game so we'd better be ready."

The first five times Arizona had the ball, it scored on Utah, with five different players getting into the act. Arizona led 31-0 by the half and the Wildcat regulars were already on the bench. The Wildcats turned the ball over twice in the game — after the reserves went in — marking only the sixth and seventh times Arizona has lost the ball all year.

Charlie Ah You scored twice and Jeff Blanc ran for a third touchdown as BYU won its sixth game in its last seven outings.

Steve Myer, who came to New Mexico as a junior college transfer and left with virtually every Lobo passing record, went out with a strong showing in hitting 24 of 37 passes for 263 yards and three touchdowns and ran for a fourth in the New Mexico win.

Pistons Won't Trade Lanier

DETROIT (UPI) — Ray Scott, coach and director of player personnel with the Detroit Pistons, scotched reports Sunday center Bob Lanier is headed for the New York Knicks in a blockbuster deal.

Reports have been circulating the 27-year-old Lanier is to be traded to the Knicks for forward Phil Jackson, center John Gianelli and an estimated $200,000 cash.

"It is one of the most ridiculous rumors I've ever heard," said Scott. "

Amritraj Wins Tennis Crown

Calcutta (AP) — Vijay Amritraj of India delighted his countrymen Sunday by overpowering U.S. Open champion Manuel Orantes of Spain 7-5, 6-3 for the men's singles title in the $50,000 Indian Grand Prix Lawn Tennis Championships.

The second-seeded Amritraj took the closely-fought first set from the stocky left-hander, who tried to keep the Indian off balance with accurate placements and off-speed shots.

In the second set, with Amritraj leading 4-3, Orantes couldn't fend off the Indian's attack to his backhand and lost service.

Grey Cup To Edmonton

CALGARY, ALTA. (UPI) — Dave Cutler kicked a 52-yard field goal on the final play of the third quarter Sunday to give the Edmonton Eskimos a 9-8 victory over the Montreal Alouettes in the Canadian Football League's Grey Cup championship.

The Alouettes, the defending champions, had an opportunity to go ahead with 45 seconds remaining in the game when Don Sweet attempted a field goal from 19 yards out, but the ball failed wide and went for a single point.

Edmonton then ran out the clock on three plays for their first Grey Cup victory since 1956.

Since then, the Eskimos have made four Grey cup appearances, including each of the last three years.

Montreal took a 6-0 lead in the opening quarter on two Sweet field goals, one from 35 yards out at 5:50 and unother from 47 yards six minutes later.

At that stage, the 47-yard kick was a Grey Cup record, better than the 46-yard kick of Gerry Organ of the Ottawa Roughriders in 1973.

Cutler kicked his first of three field goals at 4:26 of the second quarter. Later, Sweet gave Montreal a 7-3 lead when his 32-yard field goal attempt was wide, but went for a 29-yard single.

WAC Showdown Will Decide Husker Foe

Eighth-ranked Arizona State was scheduled to take last week off all along. And as it turned out, 11th-ranked Arizona got a breather too as it looked ahead to its Nov. 29th showdown with ASU for the Western Athletic Conference championship.

Arizona, which didn't even suit up its top two rushers Dave Randolph and Melvin Baker, used its first-string for only a part of the first half and had 14 different players rush with the ball en route to a 38-14 win over Utah. The loss gave Utah its second straight 1-10 season.

The win gave Arizona a 9-1 record overall and 5-1 in the WAC as it looks towards the game with ASU, which is 10-0 and 6-0. The winner of the game will earn the WAC's host spot in the Fiesta Bowl.

"It was hard for us to get up for the game," said Arizona coach Jim Young, following his team's 567-yard total offense effort. "But we played well and it gave us a chance to see a lot of new faces."

Now, Young knows his team will have a full chore ahead of it.

"Arizona is a tough team or it wouldn't be 10-0," said Young, "We are going to have to stay up to beat ASU. We've played the whole season for the last game so we'd better be ready."

The first five times Arizona had the ball, it scored on Utah, with five different players getting into the act. Arizona led 31-0 by the half and the Wildcat regulars were already on the bench. The Wildcats turned the ball over twice in the game — after the reserves went in — marking only the sixth and seventh times Arizona has lost the ball all year.

Charlie Ah You scored twice and Jeff Blanc ran for a third touchdown as BYU won its sixth game in its last seven outings.

Steve Myer, who came to New Mexico as a junior college transfer and left with virtually every Lobo passing record, went out with a strong showing in hitting 24 of 37 passes for 263 yards and three touchdowns and ran for a fourth in the New Mexico win.

Pistons Won't Trade Lanier

DETROIT (UPI) — Ray Scott, coach and director of player personnel with the Detroit Pistons, scotched reports Sunday center Bob Lanier is headed for the New York Knicks in a blockbuster deal.

Reports have been circulating the 27-year-old Lanier is to be traded to the Knicks for forward Phil Jackson, center John Gianelli and an estimated $200,000 cash.

"It is one of the most ridiculous rumors I've ever heard," said Scott. "

Amritraj Wins Tennis Crown

Calcutta (AP) — Vijay Amritraj of India delighted his countrymen Sunday by overpowering U.S. Open champion Manuel Orantes of Spain 7-5, 6-3 for the men's singles title in the $50,000 Indian Grand Prix Lawn Tennis Championships.

The second-seeded Amritraj took the closely-fought first set from the stocky left-hander, who tried to keep the Indian off balance with accurate placements and off-speed shots.

In the second set, with Amritraj leading 4-3, Orantes couldn't fend off the Indian's attack to his backhand and lost service.

Omaha (AP) — City Councilman Monte Taylor said he will become the first to formally announce his candidacy for the 2nd District seat in Congress.

The Republican said he will make the announcement and outline his campaign goals at a morning news conference at the Omaha Press Club Monday.

At least two other Republicans and a Democrat have indicated an interest in seeking the post now held by Rep. John Y. McCollister, who has announced for the Senate seat of retiring Roman Hruska.

Other Republicans who say they are interested in the 2nd District congressional race are Douglas County Commissioner P. J. Morgan and former television newscaster Lee Terry.

State Sen. John Cavanaugh is the Democrat who has indicated interest in the race.

Rossini Opens Evening Of Chamber Music

By MAX HOLLAND
Star Staff Writer

The second concert of the Friends of Chamber Music series proved Saturday night it isn't always necessary to import an ensemble from outside Nebraska to provide a gratifying evening of chamber music. The Nebraska Chamber Orchestra under the direction of Robert Emile was more than equal to that task.

The concert opened with Gioacchino Rossini's overture to the opera "Il Signor Bruschino" (1813). Rossini turned this opera into a farce which his opening-night audience didn't quite understand, and it closed after only one performance. The work has since been revived, but as in many of Rossini's operas, it is the overture that is heard most often.

The overture is full of the inevitable Rossini mannerisms — violins sawing away, endless crescendos, and the beating of tonal relationships to death.

The orchestra played with the appropriate verve and even managed to keep a straight face while the violins tapped their bows on the stands to mark the measures (a little joke by the composer). The strings stayed together valiantly during the perpetual running passages, and the woodwind displayed excellent tone and balance.

The orchestra then went from the predictability of Rossini to the fertile imagination of Josef Haydn. They performed his Symphony No. 87 in A major (c. 1785), one of six symphonies Haydn composed for a Paris musical society.

The orchestra was faithful to the cordial and graceful character of the piece, with the flute and oboe passages in the second movement especially warm and fluent. Emile is an intriguing conductor. He does not use any histrionics, indeed he is most economical in his movements. Yet the orchestra responds neatly to him and he is in indisputable control. He elicits the subtle changes that mean the difference between a routine reading and a sympathetic one.

For the second half of the concert the orchestra ventured into more recent works by Samuel Barber, Robert Walters, an orchestra member, and the French composer Jacques Ibert.

Barber's Capricorn Concerto (1944) was among those neoclassic compositions that tried to revive the baroque concerto grosso form, where the solist's role is less important than the modern concerto.

Barber's penchant for the melodic line and his fundamentally romantic outlook were manifest in this piece. The trumpet, flute and oboe concertino which alternated with the full ensemble showed Barber's careful ear for color and striking lyricism. The concertino passages sounded quite simple and idiomatic but required and received virtuoso treatment.

The next two pieces by violist Robert Walters, Two Landscapes for Oboe and Strings (1967-68), were composed from two different motifs. The first was based on an intervallic ostinato spreading through the ensemble, the second on a rhythmic one. The pieces contained fine moments but even for pieces of such short duration there was inadequate development, short of the predictable methods.

The program closed with Ibert's Divertissement (1930) and though Dr. Emile provided a pleasing introduction, it hardly prepared the audience for the melange that followed.

The orchestra performed the work with great relish and the audience returned the favor. What they heard varied from a parody of French impressionism to a march which sounded as if an aging high school band were playing. There was a fascinating burlesque of a Viennese waltz, in which Ibert extended and by doing so distorted the cliche-ridden form. Through it all, the orchestra showed the technique and musicality that made for a successful evening.

The next concert in the series will be Jan. 16 and feature Secolo Barocco, a French baroque ensemble.

Woman Rescued After 90-Minute Chase

Miami (UPI) — Police chased a car at high speeds for 90 minutes through downtown Miami Sunday and rescued a 22-year-old woman from an assailant who allegedly abducted, raped and beat her and threatened to hold her for $1 million ransom.

Authorities arrested a 22-year-old man, identified as Ronald Lee King, on charges of rape, aggravated battery, kidnaping and auto theft. Police said he is suspected in other rape cases.

The 22-year-old victim was not identified. Police said her father was the president of a major company. She reportedly was beaten severely but suffered no broken bones.

Police said the woman was abducted as she stepped from her car to attend an exercise class early Sunday. A man reportedly punched her back into the vehicle, slid into the driver's seat and drove off, with the woman screaming.

Police said the victim's instructor rushed outside, saw her being driven away and telephoned authorities.

A bulletin for the car was issued and shortly before 7:30 a.m. Miami police officer Robert Meeks spotted the vehicle and the struggling woman. He and other officers chased the suspect car at high speeds for 90 minutes through the downtown section and on an expressway.

Finally patrol cars converged and stopped the car.

"He was boxed in," said homicide Sgt. Mike Gonzalez. "He tried to run but they caught him."

The woman told authorities she had been driven to a downtown area and raped while her assailant held a screwdriver to her throat. She said the man forced her to give her father's telephone number and told her he planned to put her in the trunk and ask $1 million ransom.

Lincoln Girl Still Missing

Authorities are continuing their search for a 15-year-old Lincoln girl missing since last Thursday.

The girl, Kim S. Rowley, is described as four feet, nine inches tall, 100 pounds, with red bushy hair and brown eyes. She was wearing a maroon parka when last seen at her home at 1026 S. 12th, police said.

A bulletin for the car was issued and shortly before 7:30 a.m. Miami police officer Robert Meeks spotted the vehicle and the struggling woman. He and other officers chased the suspect car at high speeds for 90 minutes through the downtown section and on an expressway.

Finally patrol cars converged and stopped the car.

"He was boxed in," said homicide Sgt. Mike Gonzalez. "He tried to run but they caught him."

The woman told authorities she had been driven to a downtown area and raped while her assailant held a screwdriver to her throat. She said the man forced her to give her father's telephone number and told her he planned to put her in the trunk and ask $1 million ransom.

150,000 Plus In Early Childhood Education

More than 150,000 children are involved in approximately 60 early childhood education programs in the state, according to the Nebraska Department of Education.

Elementary education consultant Stan Carlson said the department receives about two requests weekly for guidance and advice, indicating a growing interest in early childhood education.

About half the youngsters go to preschools, most of them privately owned and operated, Carlson said. He noted the department is also receiving numerous inquiries about how to set up quality preschool programs.

The Education Department will set guidelines for judging preschool programs quality. Rather than seeking legislation, Carlson advocates arousing public awareness of the need for quality programs. And he intends to provide operational descriptions for potential program directors and parents to use in identifying that quality.

Carlson said a preschool program should meet psychological needs of children ages 3 to 6, and should develop a strong sense of autonomy and initiative in the child.

While stressing security, he said, programs should also offer considerable activity choices to allow each child to "sense the limits of his or her maturity."

Parental involvement in the child's education is increasing, Carlson said. "Parents should know what good developmental patterns are, and they can work with the younger kids at home before they go to a school or center."

Carlson said children should have some group experiences beginning at about age 3, "so they know what it's like to be around other kids."

The State Education Department is continuing work in early childhood education and a statewide council is being formed.

Lewis Hoobler of 3410 Pioneers Blvd. has been named a special aide-de-camp to the national commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreigns Wars. He is a member of VFW Post 3606 in Lincoln.

Historical Tours Offered For Pupils

The Nebraska State Historical Society, 1500 R, is offering a variety of tours for school groups, according to education curator Elouise Soukup.

Tours can be arranged at the State Historical Museum and Kennard House in Lincoln, and the Fort Robinson Museum.

Not only social studies classes, but home economics, English, art and foreign language students can benefit, Mrs. Soukup said.

For example, home economics classes may use visits to the Kennard House and Fort Robinson officer quarters to study design and interior decoration.

CARC Lauds 3 Teachers In TOP Program

Three Lincoln Public Schools teachers in the TOP (Training for Occupational Proficiency) program at Hayward School have been recognized by the Capitol Association for Retarded Citizens.

CARC named team leader Eileen Brown "Teacher of the Year," counselor Jack E. Carroll "Good Guy of the Year," and teacher aide Jo Ann Ninneman "Advocate of the Year."

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Monday, November 24, 1975

"What do you say about the future?" — Bob Arnold, Compton, Calif. Response: The "future" is where you and I — and all of us — will spend the rest of our lives.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Many are surprised by your ability to create, to stylize, to foresee trends. You'll be consulted by young persons. You may also find yourself "falling in love again." You'll be in touch with yourself as emotional responses, for a time, take over from logic.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Stress confidence, humor and willingness to chide yourself for your own foibles. Change, travel, variety, reading and writing are featured. Accent on past obligations, dealings with older persons, a coming to terms with authority figure.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Spotlight on home, residence, adjustment within family circle. A "grouchy" relative, believe it or not, is merely seeking affection. Realize that routine is to be changed. Be flexible. Make some concessions. If you give a little, odds are that gains will be significant.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Funds may be temporarily tied up due to legal procedure. Key is to define terms, to see as is, to avoid self-deception. Pisces, Virgo could figure prominently. You are asked to review, to read between the lines and to come off "cloud nine."

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Cycle is such that you make commitment, decide to imprint style, rhythm, and you gain support from those who played cards close to chest. Discretion may be required. Curb tendency to be overly enthusiastic. Capricorn, Cancer types are likely to be involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Finish rather than begin — realize that organization actually will support your efforts. Threats, doubts, fears are of paper tiger variety. Relative may act in eccentric manner. Take this with proverbial grain of salt. Means grin and bear it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friend who asks for long-range money commitment is merely probing. Know it and withhold any final answer. Above all, refuse to go back to past. Instead, make clear the fact that you're going forward in independent, creative manner. Leo will aid!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You get chance to replace, rebuild, refurnish and create atmosphere more to your own liking. Intuitive intellect should be heeded. Means follow through on feelings, hunch, inner desire. Your position is due to be elevated. Know it and conduct yourself accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Movement, expansion — these are featured, along with contacts, dialogue, ability to charm way to inner circle. A relative could tell a "tall tale." Be discriminating. Refuse to have your intelligence insulted. You're going places — there is need to know it, to be confident.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Money and friendship could combine, ingredients are on delicate balance. Be positive about requests, obligations, credits and debits. Aquarius, Taurus and Leo could figure prominently. One who makes promises could be financially embarrassed. Know it and be ready with alternative.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What you want will come to you. Means don't force issues. Take advantage of opportunity to display products, ideas to professional superior. Gemini, Virgo persons could be very much in picture. Many of your questions are due to be answered.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Low-key approach is best — be diplomatic, make intelligent concessions. Home life undergoes change, but you adjust to it. Taurus, Libra figure prominently. One who had been quiet, reserved, on the fence, comes out for your position.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have a "good voice," a sweet tooth and you love to travel. Taurus, Libra persons play important roles in your life. Forces have been scattered, but you will be in your element in 1976. You are a fighter for justice, you stick with principles and defend the oppressed. You're no angel, but you do try to be fair.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Polarization About Course Surfaces Via Call To Star

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Polarization about a Lincoln Public Schools academic course surfaced publicly last week when a caller to The Lincoln Star said a group of parents had requested a meeting with Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction.

Discussion topics were to include "Man: A Course of Study" (MACOS), and claims that the schools teach transactional analysis, the occult and sensitivity training.

The Star then learned about two Holmes School parent meetings on Oct. 21, attended by 15 Lincolnites who have no connection with Holmes.

Church, Day School, Birch Society

At least one of those persons, according to the meeting record, has no children of school age, and the other variously represented a church group, a religious-affiliated nondenominational day school and the John Birch Society. The individuals ranged in age from young adults to elderly.

The meeting, according to Holmes Principal Ruth Eickman, was called for parents to discuss cultural awareness programs. MACOS was to be only a part of that.

The Star published (Nov. 20) a story reporting that the individuals with no Holmes connection took over the meeting, attacking MASCOS and calling for abolition of the United Nations and UNICEF.

Two Points Corrected

Miss Eickman, correcting two points in The Star story, said the individuals were not led by S. H. Brauer Jr., head of the Nebraska School Improvement Association. Brauer attended. And the individuals didn't take over the meeting, but rather "monopolized it," she said.

"They "had not come to hear what our purpose of the meeting was, and that was to present facts," she said. The references to the U.N. and UNICEF were made following the formal meeting, she said.

Miss Eickman said Brauer did not speak out at the evening session, but that he had upset a teacher afterward and "several parents heard this." Brauer told The Star last Wednesday that the teacher apparently was "defensive" after the afternoon session and "thought I was being very critical of her, which I wasn't."

Brauer said he "asked her several questions, it upset her, she was very emotionally upset."

Brauer Not Member

The Star also reported that reliable sources said Brauer is a John Birch Society leader. Mrs. Roger Bowker of rural Lincoln said Brauer is not a member of the society's Lincoln chapter, which her husband heads; that Brauer has no connection with it and has attended no meetings.

However, Mrs. Bowker confirmed Miss Eickman's report that John Birch Society literature had been distributed at the Holmes meeting, and gave a copy to The Star.

Entitled "Those Federal Textbooks," by Robert W. Lee, it is reprinted from the July 30, 1975, "Review of the News." A Western Islands Publishing Co. spokeswoman told The Star by telephone that the company is the John Birch Society's publisher, and that "Review" is "an affiliate" of the society.

The "Review" article states that "the MACOS program was developed by the federal government and then passed on for profit to sell perversions to our youth."

Caller Is Concerned

One caller to The Star expressed such concerns, but said he must learn more about MACOS. Then if topics covered in MACOS are too sensitive for 5th-graders, he said he will consider (but would prefer to avoid) sending his child to a parochial school.

Another caller, supporting the MACOS approach, said the marketplace of ideas in school must allow room for comparative thinking.

Brauer said last week, "I am very disturbed" by MACOS, which he alleged is "very destructive of American values and American traditions." The course content has "far-reaching ramifications" which Brauer offered to discuss fully later.

No Elaboration Yet

The Star contacted Brauer on Friday and again on Sunday to allow him to elaborate. First he refused, then he would say only that MACOS is indefensible, but declined to explain further.

MACOS, developed by the National Science Foundation, has been attacked in Congress as well.

According to the "Review" article, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York claims the MACOS presentation of the Netsilik Eskimo culture contains "repeated and approving references to such tribal habits as adultery, bestiality, cannibalism, incest, infanticide, murder, revenge, robbery and mate-swapping."

The publication then lists "extracts" illustrating the basis for Kemp's charges.

'Not Used With Children'

Miss Eickman said those MACOS excerpts are "not material that is used with the children." Rather, she said, it's "for the understanding of the staff person."

Brandt concurred with Miss Eickman. "It's stretching things a bit to refer to the practices" as being imposed on students; rather, they give teachers "a view of the whole culture."

All Holmes MACOS teachers are "highly trained" before dealing with materials, in a program offered by the public schools administration, Miss Eickman said. It's "not just one person's decision that we have this program," which she said was subjected to scrutiny in development.

Brandt said MACOS is "not something you teach from page 1 to 50," but includes a "great range of materials."

Violence Part Of Culture

He noted, in comparison, that Western or European cultures keep alive myths, fables and legends. The wolf falling into boiling water in the Three Little Pigs, or Little Red Riding Hood cutting open the wolf's stomach to retrieve grandmother, or the witch threatening to bake Hansel and Gretel in the oven all represent violence but are part of our own culture, he said.

"There is not an intention that somehow you teach people to do those things," Brandt said.

Miss Eickman said Holmes parents "have been told we do want them to know about the materials, and if they feel it is a course they do not want their child involved with, we can offer an altered (MACOS) course, or an alternate course."

Parents Urged To Visit Staff

One caller to The Star claimed "parents do not know about this." Miss Eickman encouraged parents to visit about it with staff members in their children's schools.

Brandt said concerns often are resolved at that level. If not, parents may file a formal complaint. Then the material in question will be reviewed by teachers from all levels. The complaining parent may submit written objections or appear in person. Teachers then make recommendations to Brandt on continued use of the material. The school board is ultimately responsible.

Regarding the other charges, Brandt said, "This school system does not do anything that I would consider 'sensitivity training,'" such as group or laboratory sessions. "We conduct classroom discussions," which he said are essential.

Hilda Taba Basis Used

Brandt said elementary social studies courses use the basis of the Hilda Taba philosophy, which helps teachers learn ways children think, how they arrive at generalizations and conclusions after looking at facts.

The method helps teachers help students to "form a concept about a different thing like justice and freedom, and what that means," he said.

Any teaching of the occult is "certainly not part of any standard approved curriculum," he said, nor is transactional analysis taught formally. Brandt said TA is a tool to analyze conversations to see if there's good communication.

A teacher must be good at that to "help students learn to be responsible adults," he said.

'Concern About Attitudes' Natural

"There is not a way for teachers to teach children without being concerned about their attitudes toward things and the way they behave," Brandt said.

Lincoln schools "ordinarily don't teach values" outright, or as a separate subject, he said. By stressing "being someplace on time, in that sense we teach values."

But when a controversial subject, or one that evokes differing opinions, is being discussed in class, Brandt said teachers may use "values clarification," a specific but indirect way to help students think about a topic.

Moral Education Said Pervasive

"Moral education — if such a thing exists — goes on the whole time in schools. It is not a subject," says Peter McPhail of Cambridge University in England.

In the Kettering Foundation fall issue of "New Ways," McPhail said "all communications in schools are value laden."

Edwin Fenton of Harvard University's Center for Moral Development and Education said schools can help students' natural process of moral development in two ways:

First, by conducting moral discussions allowing youth to think about various issues as part of their social studies and English classes. "Literature is simply loaded with moral dilemmas, and teachers just need the skills to conduct useful discussions."

Secondly, he suggests using a civic education school within regular school to cause students to think about their rights and responsibilities.

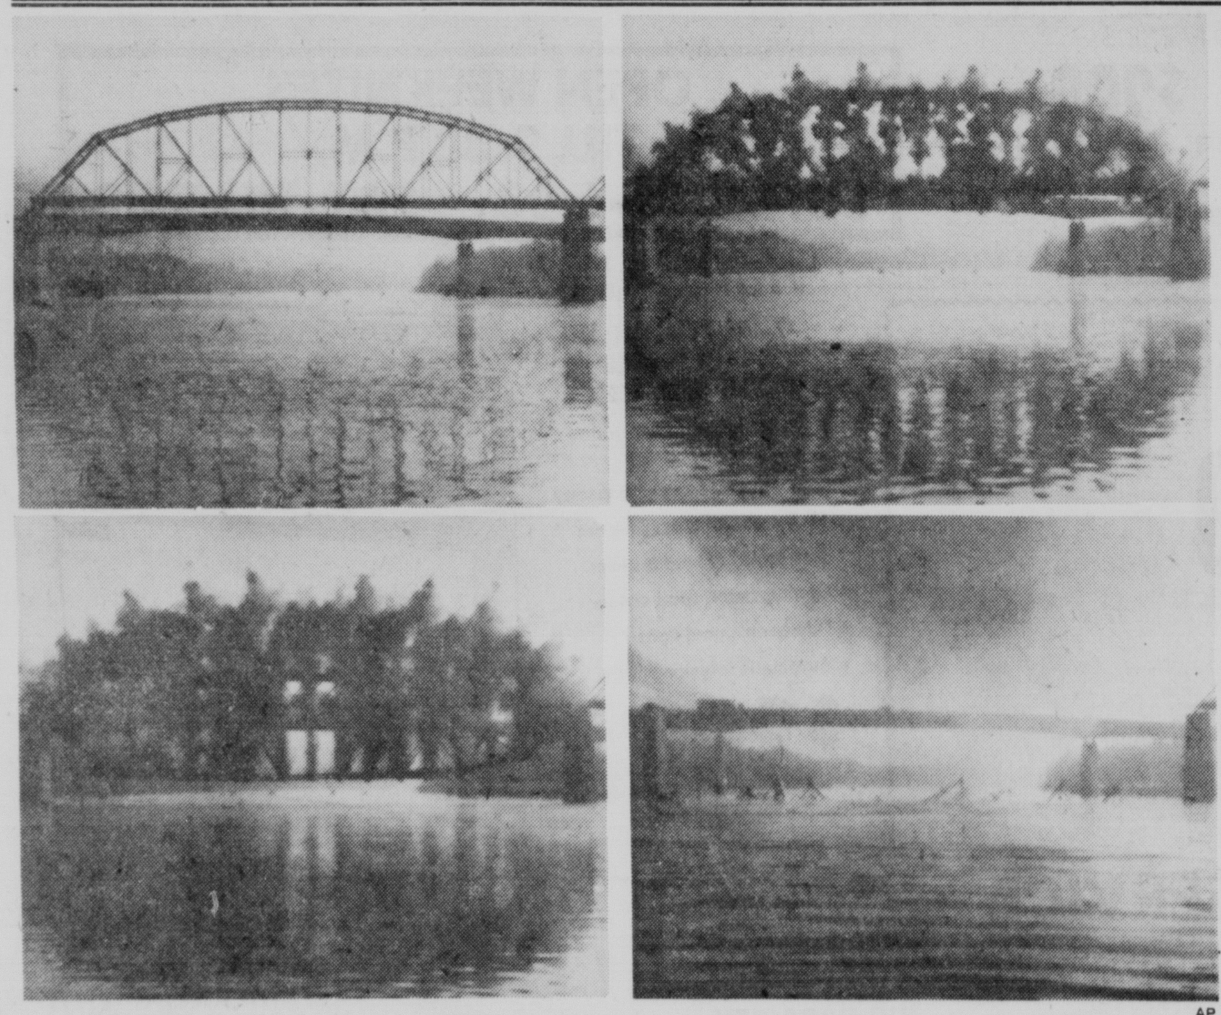

"There is a great tendency in American life to say that it's the family's job to teach ethics. Well, of course it is," says George C. S. Benson of Claremont Men's College and author of "Amoral America." But "the family is a considerably less effective unit than it was even 50 years ago. We just can't expect the family to do it all."

And Harry K. Wong, teacher and director of the Ideas and Investigations in Science Project, Redwood, Calif., said, "Kids who are not succeeding cause problems in our schools, and the reason we have so many non-successes . . . is because we have not taken responsibility for the fact that all kids deserve an education.

"We only educate the kids who come out looking and smelling like us."

McPhail said, "The development of moralities in communities is in response to human need . . . and so I believe it is not necessary to approach this job either in depression or guilt, because (ultimately) you're leaving it to the individual young people to apply consideration for others in terms of their society.

"You're not giving prescriptive answers about what ought to be done."

Housewife's Blast 'Went So Fast'

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — With the push of a button, the flick of a lever and a laugh, 38-year-old housewife Barbara Oros sent a 60-year old bridge twisting and tumbling Sunday into the Kanawha River.

"It went so fast," Mrs. Oros gasped.

"You didn't goof," her 11-year-old daughter Corinne exclaimed.

Mrs. Oros, a Middletown, Ohio, native who moved to Charleston six months ago from Texas, had her name drawn from 2,879 entries in the Charleston Daily Mail's contest to blow up the Kanawha City Bridge.

The span, which connects the main part of Charleston with the suburban Kanawha City section, is being replaced by two bridges, one of them already built.

As thousands of spectators lined the river banks, a high school band played "Auld Lang Syne," preceded by a "Taps" trumpet solo. Mrs. Oros pushed a safety button and moved a lever to the right in a small red metal box, connected by a yellow cord 1,000 feet away to the 57 pounds explosive charges strung like a Christmas decoration along the steel-and-stone structure.

An orange flash zipped along the old roadway and was instantaneously lost in a giant cloud of black smoke. The sound was one solid bang as the steel and stone fell slowly into the river, leaving above the water only a few twisted steel girders.

The explosion reduced the bridge into 10-ton chunks, which cranes mounted on barges could lift from the river.

"In 50 years, four county fairs and a dog show, I've never seen anything like this," said Joe McAlinden, a New Jersey explosive expert.

"It's very different for us," Mrs. Oros said. "We've heard from people all over the country. It one of those things you'll never think will happen in your lifetime."

The blast was a 40th birthday present for her husband, Michael, who had his movie camera ready for his wife's big moment.

"I never even flinched," he said afterwards. "I got a good shot."

The spectators brought lawn chairs, infants and poodles to the Sunday morning spectacle.

"I don't think we'll ever have another promotion quite like this," said Daily Mail City Editor Sam Hindman. "The only thing that could top this is if they raze the Capitol and we get to take the dome off."

Tonight breast cancer patients tell what it was like.

Parrot Cries Wolf, Gives Humane Society Headache

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — That voice in the tree yelling for help is getting tiresome, Humane Society officials say.

The voice belongs to a large, green parrot which they say has been loose in Spokane's South Hill neighborhood for a year.

"About this time last fall, we got the first call on the parrot," said Karen Hargraves, Humane Society education director. "Since then we have received more than 40 calls on him.

"We're sure it's the same one. It just sits there in the top of a tree somewhere and hollers for help."

Mrs. Hargraves said the society has received calls from all over the city about the bird. Humane Society employes have been unable to catch it because it rests too high in the trees, she said.

She said the society wants to catch the bird so it can be returned to its owner. But she said no one has reported a missing parrot.

Douglas County Hospital Future May Be Examined

Omaha (AP)—A dropping patient load in the medical, surgical and emergency rooms has caused two groups to call for an examination of the future of the Douglas County Hospital.

The hospital's executive committee proposed a study during a recent meeting, said Dr. David Bean, administrator and a committee member.

A special committee named by the County Board also has been asked to evaluate proposed administrative changes. It also recommended the hospital study further the medical, surgical and emergency room operations.

Observers said a possible result of the study could be more emphasis on the hospital's psychiatric and geriatric work and de-emphasis of the medical, surgical and emergency room functions.

The number of emergency room patients has declined drastically since 1970, when the Fire Department switched to a zone system for its rescue squads, Dr. Bean said.

Expressions Of Needs Are Solicited

Americans of diverse backgrounds are being asked to consider the nation's needs in the next century and to express those concepts thoughtfully and creatively.

The American bicentennial award program, sponsored by the Smithsonian Institution and Wells Fargo Bank, solicits entries dealing with America's third Century in:

Individual freedom in society. American arts and culture. Science, technology, energy and environment. Family life, work and leisure. The U.S. and the world.

Entry categories include essays written by people under age 18, those age 18 or older, and films or tape recordings. More information may be obtained by writing to Toward Our Third Century, P.O. Box 44076, San Francisco, Calif. 94144.

Polarization About Course Surfaces Via Call To Star

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Polarization about a Lincoln Public Schools academic course surfaced publicly last week when a caller to The Lincoln Star said a group of parents had requested a meeting with Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction.

Discussion topics were to include "Man: A Course of Study" (MACOS), and claims that the schools teach transactional analysis, the occult and sensitivity training.

The Star then learned about two Holmes School parent meetings on Oct. 21, attended by 15 Lincolnites who have no connection with Holmes.

Church, Day School, Birch Society

At least one of those persons, according to the meeting record, has no children of school age, and the other variously represented a church group, a religious-affiliated nondenominational day school and the John Birch Society. The individuals ranged in age from young adults to elderly.

The meeting, according to Holmes Principal Ruth Eickman, was called for parents to discuss cultural awareness programs. MACOS was to be only a part of that.

The Star published (Nov 20) a story reporting that the individuals with no Holmes connection took over the meeting, attacking MASCOS and calling for abolition of the United Nations and UNICEF.

Two Points Corrected

Miss Eickman, correcting two points in The Star story, said the individuals were not led by S H. Brauer Jr., head of the Nebraska School Improvement Association. Brauer attended. And the individuals didn't take over the meeting, but rather "monopolized it," she said.

"They "had not come to hear what our purpose of the meeting was, and that was to present facts," she said. The references to the U.N and UNICEF were made following the formal meeting, she said.

Miss Eickman said Brauer did not speak out at the evening session, but that he had upset a teacher afterward and "several parents heard this." Brauer told The Star last Wednesday that the teacher apparently was "defensive" after the afternoon session and "thought I was being very critical of her, which I wasn't."

Brauer said he "asked her several questions, it upset her, she was very emotionally upset."

Brauer Not Member

The Star also reported that reliable sources said Brauer is a John Birch Society leader. Mrs. Roger Bowker of rural Lincoln said Brauer is not a member of the society's Lincoln chapter, which her husband heads; that Brauer has no connection with it and has attended no meetings.

However, Mrs. Bowker confirmed Miss Eickman's report that John Birch Society literature had been distributed at the Holmes meeting, and gave a copy to The Star.

Entitled "Those Federal Textbooks," by Robert W. Lee, it is reprinted from the July 30, 1975, "Review of the News." A Western Islands Publishing Co. spokeswoman told The Star by telephone that the company is the John Birch Society's publisher, and that "Review" is "an affiliate" of the society.

The "Review" article states that "the MACOS program was developed by the federal government and then passed on for profit to sell perversions to our youth."

Caller Is Concerned

One caller to The Star expressed such concerns, but said he must learn more about MACOS. Then if topics covered in MACOS are too sensitive for 5th-graders, he said he will consider (but would prefer to avoid) sending his child to a parochial school.

Another caller, supporting the MACOS approach, said the marketplace of ideas in school must allow room for comparative thinking.

Brauer said last week, "I am very disturbed" by MACOS, which he alleged is "very destructive of American values and American traditions." The course content has "far-reaching ramifications" which Brauer offered to discuss fully later.

No Elaboration Yet

The Star contacted Brauer on Friday and again on Sunday to allow him to elaborate. First he refused, then he would say only that MACOS is indefensible, but declined to explain further.

MACOS, developed by the National Science Foundation, has been attacked in Congress as well.

According to the "Review" article, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York claims the MACOS presentation of the Netsilik Eskimo culture contains "repeated and approving references to such tribal habits as adultery, bestiality, cannibalism, incest, infanticide, murder, revenge, robbery and mate-swapping."

The publication then lists "extracts" illustrating the basis for Kemp's charges.

'Not Used With Children'

Miss Eickman said those MACOS excerpts are "not material that is used with the children." Rather, she said, it's "for the understanding of the staff person."

Brandt concurred with Miss Eickman. "It's stretching things a bit to refer to the practices" as being imposed on students; rather, they give teachers "a view of the whole culture."

All Holmes MACOS teachers are "highly trained" before dealing with materials, in a program offered by the public schools administration, Miss Eickman said. It's "not just one person's decision that we have this program," which she said was subjected to scrutiny in development.

Brandt said MACOS is "not something you teach from page 1 to 50," but includes a "great range of materials."

Violence Part Of Culture

He noted, in comparison, that Western or European cultures keep alive myths, fables and legends. The wolf falling into boiling water in the Three Little Pigs, or Little Red Riding Hood cutting open the wolf's stomach to retrieve grandmother, or the witch threatening to bake Hansel and Gretel in the oven all represent violence but are part of our own culture, he said.

"There is not an intention that somehow you teach people to do those things," Brandt said.

Miss Eickman said Holmes parents "have been told we do want them to know about the materials, and if they feel it is a course they do not want their child involved with, we can offer an altered (MACOS) course, or an alternate course."

Parents Urged To Visit Staff

One caller to The Star claimed "parents do not know about this." Miss Eickman encouraged parents to visit about it with staff members in their children's schools.

Brandt said concerns often are resolved at that level. If not, parents may file a formal complaint. Then the material in question will be reviewed by teachers from all levels. The complaining parent may submit written objections or appear in person. Teachers then make recommendations to Brandt on continued use of the material. The school board is ultimately responsible.

Regarding the other charges, Brandt said, "This school system does not do anything that I would consider 'sensitivity training,'" such as group or laboratory sessions. "We conduct classroom discussions," which he said are essential.

Hilda Taba Basis Used

Brandt said elementary social studies courses use the basis of the Hilda Taba philosophy, which helps teachers learn ways children think, how they arrive at generalizations and conclusions after looking at facts.

The method helps teachers help students to "form a concept about a different thing like justice and freedom, and what that means," he said.

Any teaching of the occult is "certainly not part of any standard approved curriculum," he said, nor is transactional analysis taught formally. Brandt said TA is a tool to analyze conversations to see if there's good communication.

A teacher must be good at that to "help students learn to be responsible adults," he said.

'Concern About Attitudes' Natural

"There is not a way for teachers to teach children without being concerned about their attitudes toward things and the way they behave," Brandt said.

Lincoln schools "ordinarily don't teach values" outright, or as a separate subject, he said. By stressing "being someplace on time, in that sense we teach values."

But when a controversial subject, or one that evokes differing opinions, is being discussed in class, Brandt said teachers may use "values clarification," a specific but indirect way to help students think about a topic.

Moral Education Said Pervasive

"Moral education — if such a thing exists — goes on the whole time in schools. It is not a subject," says Peter McPhail of Cambridge University in England.

In the Kettering Foundation fall issue of "New Ways," McPhail said "all communications in schools are value laden."

Edwin Fenton of Harvard University's Center for Moral Development and Education said schools can help students' natural process of moral development in two ways:

First, by conducting moral discussions allowing youth to think about various issues as part of their social studies and English classes. "Literature is simply loaded with moral dilemmas, and teachers just need the skills to conduct useful discussions."

Secondly, he suggests using a civic education school within regular school to cause students to think about their rights and responsibilities.

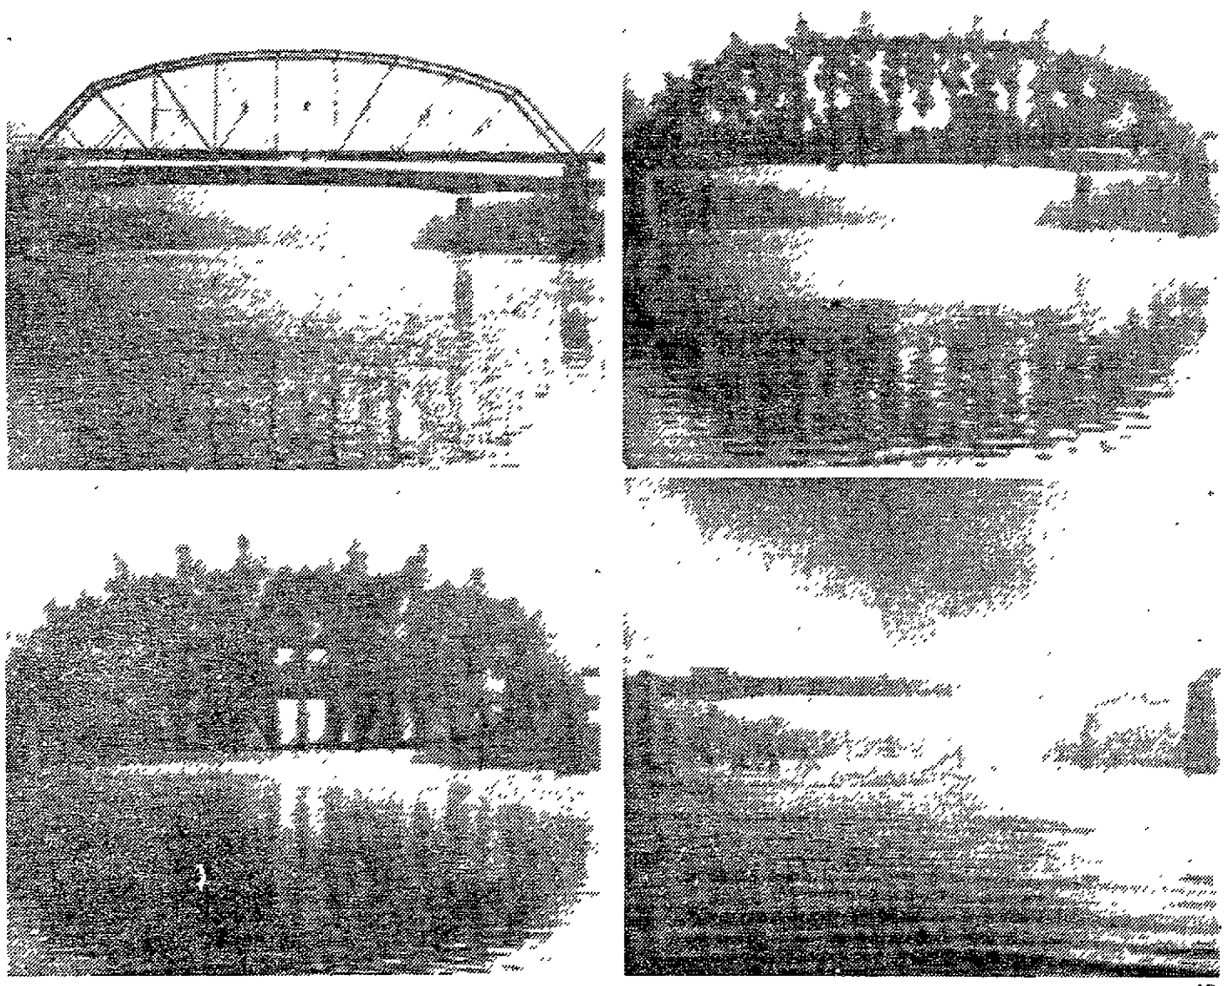

"There is a great tendency in American life to say that it's the family's job to teach ethics. Well, of course it is," says George C. S. Benson of Claremont Men's College and author of "Amoral America." But "the family is a considerably less effective unit than it was even 50 years ago. We just can't expect the family to do it all."

And Harry K. Wong, teacher and director of the Ideas and Investigations in Science Project, Redwood, Calif., said, "Kids who are not succeeding cause problems in our schools, and the reason we have so many non-successes . . . is because we have not taken responsibility for the fact that all kids deserve an education.

"We only educate the kids who come out looking and smelling like us."

McPhail said, "The development of moralities in communities is in response to human need . . . and so I believe it is not necessary to approach this job either in depression or guilt, because (ultimately) you're leaving it to the individual young people to apply consideration for others in terms of their society.

"You're not giving prescriptive answers about what ought to be done."

Housewife's Blast 'Went So Fast'

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — With the push of a button, the flick of a lever and a laugh, 38-year-old housewife Barbara Oros sent a 60-year old bridge twisting and tumbling Sunday into the Kanawha River.

"It went so fast," Mrs. Oros gasped.

"You didn't goof," her 11-year-old daughter Corinne exclaimed.

Mrs Oros, a Middletown, Ohio, native who moved to Charleston six months ago from Texas, had her name drawn from 2,879 entries in the Charleston Daily Mail's contest to blow up the Kanawha City Bridge.

The span, which connects the main part of Charleston with the suburban Kanawha City section, is being replaced by two bridges, one of them already built.

As thousands of spectators lined the river banks, a high school band played "Auld Lang Syne," preceded by a "Taps" trumpet solo. Mrs. Oros pushed a safety button and moved a lever to the right in a small red metal box, connected by a yellow cord 1,000 feet away to the 57 pounds explosive charges strung like a Christmas decoration along the steel-and-stone structure.

An orange flash zipped along the old roadway and was instantaneously lost in a giant cloud of black smoke. The sound was one solid bang as the steel and stone fell slowly into the river, leaving above the water only a few twisted steel girders.

The explosion reduced the bridge into 10-ton chunks, which cranes mounted on barges could lift from the river.

"In 50 years, four county fairs and a dog show, I've never seen anything like this," said Joe McAlinden, a New Jersey explosive expert.

"It's very different for us," Mrs. Oros said. "We've heard from people all over the country. It one of those things you'll never think will happen in your lifetime."

The blast was a 40th birthday present for her husband, Michael, who had his movie camera ready for his wife's big moment.

"I never even flinched," he said afterwards. "I got a good shot."

The spectators brought lawn chairs, infants and poodles to the Sunday morning spectacle.

"I don't think we'll ever have another promotion quite like this," said Daily Mail City Editor Sam Hindman. "The only thing that could top this is if they raze the Capitol and we get to take the dome off."

Tonight breast cancer patients tell what it was like.

Ten women who have undergone mastectomies describe their experiences on this 60-minute special hosted by Lee Grant

Parrot Cries Wolf, Gives Humane Society Headache

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — That voice in the tree yelling for help is getting tiresome, Humane Society officials say.

The voice belongs to a large, green parrot which they say has been loose in Spokane's South Hill neighborhood for a year.

"About this time last fall, we got the first call on the parrot," said Karen Hargraves, Humane Society education director. "Since then we have received more than 40 calls on him.

"We're sure it's the same one. It just sits there in the top of a tree somewhere and hollers for help."

Mrs. Hargraves said the society has received calls from all over the city about the bird. Humane Society employes have been unable to catch it because it rests too high in the trees, she said

She said the society wants to catch the bird so it can be returned to its owner. But she said no one has reported a missing parrot.

Douglas County Hospital Future May Be Examined

Omaha (AP)—A dropping patient load in the medical, surgical and emergency rooms has caused two groups to call for an examination of the future of the Douglas County Hospital.

The hospital's executive committee proposed a study during a recent meeting, said Dr. David Bean, administrator and a committee member.

A special committee named by the County Board also has been asked to evaluate proposed administrative changes. It also recommended the hospital study further the medical, surgical and emergency room operations.

Observers said a possible result of the study could be more emphasis on the hospital's psychiatric and geriatric work and de-emphasis of the medical, surgical and emergency room functions.

The number of emergency room patients has declined drastically since 1970, when the Fire Department switched to a zone system for its rescue squads, Dr Bean said.

Expressions Of Needs Are Solicited

Americans of diverse backgrounds are being asked to consider the nation's needs in the next century and to express those concepts thoughtfully and creatively.

The American bicentennial award program, sponsored by the Smithsonian Institution and Wells Fargo Bank, solicits entries dealing with America's third Century in:

Individual freedom in society. American arts and culture. Science, technology, energy and environment. Family life, work and leisure. The U.S. and the world.

Entry categories include essays written by people under age 18, those age 18 or older, and films or tape recordings. More information may be obtained by writing to Toward Our Third Century, P.O. Box 44078, San Francisco, Calif. 94144.
